G. O. P. MARGIN IN SENATE TO BE DECREASED

Tuesday's Vote Will Show Decreased Pluralities, Lawrence Says

BUTLER IN CLOSE RACE Predicts Victories for Vare, Pennsylvania, and Smith, Illinois

This is the second of a series of dispatches forecasting the outcome of the congressional elections on Tuesday. They are written by David Lawrence after a tour of the principal states in which active campaign contests have developed and after an analysis of confidential reports received by telegraph from all states in the last 24 hours.

Washington—Although the margin of Republican strength in the senate will be cut down in the elections next Tuesday, the underlying strength of the Republican party in those states in which there are contests for local offices did not develop as hardily as it was expected to. The pluralities and majorities will be less because the registration is always lower in an off-year.

Detailed reports from the principal states in which contests have occurred led the writer to the following forecast:

New York—The improvement of Governor Al Smith's chances in the last three days of the campaign will have a noticeable effect on the senatorial contest. The Republican independent candidate, Senator Wadsworth, is a real battle. If the New York Democrats vote solidly for Robert F. Wagner, the senior Republican senator will lose. His only hope is that the "wet" Democrats will pull him through and this is not likely. The New York election in the house will be relatively little changed.

BUTLER HAS CLOSE FIGHT
Massachusetts—Senator William M. Butler, candidate to fill out the unexpired term of Henry Cabot Lodge, is having a close fight. The Republican have shown apprehension while the Democrats are confident and will have shown out the vote. Republican votes have aided David I. Walsh, Democrat, in his previous contest but the chances are that he will not have this support and that Mr. Butler will win.

CONNECTICUT—Senator Hiram Bingham has an easy time of it and will win by an overwhelming majority. The state is in a prosperous condition and the Democrats have a relatively small proportion of the total vote.

VERMONT—Representative William F. Smith will be elected by a big majority but it will be much less than it would have been if the ex-

Plan to Make Milwaukee Hub of Air Travel Line

Oshkosh May Be One Center of Wisconsin Route to Twin Cities

LaCrosse—(P)—Two of the three new Stinson-Detroit cabin planes of the Northwest Airways, Inc., arrived here at 12:30 Monday noon, enroute to the Twin Cities. Three planes left Milwaukee at 9:45 o'clock Monday morning, but one was forced to return to Milwaukee after about 30 miles out. The planes were scheduled to leave Minneapolis at about 2:30. The plane that turned back was piloted by Holman. The two planes arriving here were piloted by Eddie Stinson, Detroit, and Dave Bencke, Chicago. Eight persons were in the party. A blinding snow storm through Portage made it necessary for the planes to fly close to the ground, visibility being poor.

Milwaukee—(P)—Participating in the maiden flight of three new cabin planes, which will be used immediately on the Chicago to Twin Cities mail route, officers of the Northwest Airways company Monday disclosed plans to make Milwaukee the hub for passenger lines all over the state and adjoining commonwealths.

Coming here from Detroit Sunday, the officers of the company which is taking over the mail service contract on the Chicago, Milwaukee and Twin Cities route, left at 9 o'clock Monday morning for the Minnesota cities. The planes were piloted by Eddie Stinson, manufacturer, and Charles Holman and David Bencke, regular airmail pilot.

The three planes propelled by rotary motors will go into service on the line to carry both passengers and mail.

Charles Bray, president of the Oshkosh Association of Commerce, came to Milwaukee to discuss the establishment of a commercial air line which would include Oshkosh. It was tentatively decided by the officers of the company, it was announced, to make Oshkosh one center for a Wisconsin route. In the enclosed cabin sat Col. L. H. Britton, St. Paul, vice president of the Northwest Airways, H. H. Emmons, Detroit, president, W. B. Stout, Detroit, secretary, who is also connected with the Ford Motor Co. in development of aircraft; Frank W. Blair, Detroit, treasurer; Ray Collins, vice president of a Detroit trust company, and several newspaper men.

WARRANT FOR EVJUE ARREST TO BE ISSUED
Capital Times Editor to Answer to Corrupt Practice Act Violation

Madison—(P)—Judge O. A. Stolen of the Dane co. Superior court Monday announced that the warrant for the arrest of William T. Evjue, editor of the Capital Times would be issued. Evjue was charged with violating the corrupt practices act by Harry W. Adams of Beloit, campaign manager for Charles D. Rosa, independent candidate for United States senator.

Judge Stolen heard preliminary evidence in the case Saturday and announced at that time that his decision would be Monday. In his complaint to District Attorney LaFollette of Dane co., Mr. Adams alleged that the editor was seeking to bring about the defeat of his candidate by "false statements" in an editorial Oct. 27.

FAIL TO INDORSE PERRY
Madison—(P)—Charges that a statement made by Ira S. Lorenz, urging progressive Republicans to support Charles D. Perry in the gubernatorial race, was made without party authorization, were contained in a message to state voters signed by Senator Robert M. LaFollette and Philip F. LaFollette, state attorneys.

Mr. Lorenz was campaign manager during the primary for the Progressive forces. The statement also declared that the two men would not vote for either Mr. Perry or Fred R. Zimmerman for governor, but instead would "write in the name of a man for governor whose loyalty to the Progressive principles could not be questioned."

RUSH DESTROYER TO PORT IN HONDURAS
American Craft to Protect Life and Property in Revolution

Washington, D. C.—(P)—An American destroyer has been ordered from Bluefields, Nicaragua, to Ceiba, Honduras, to protect American lives and property there.

The destroyer was asked for by the American consul at Ceiba who last week reported that inmates of the penitentiary there had combined with revolutionists and seized the town, temporarily ousting the federal forces.

While the trouble in Ceiba has subsided since control reverted to federal hands, the uncertainty of the situation, in the consul's opinion, made it desirable to have an American naval craft here to guarantee protection for foreigners in the event of revolutionary uprisings in the near future.

COOLIDGE CALLS ON VOTERS TO DO THEIR DUTY AT THE POLLS
Washington, D. C.—(P)—President Coolidge in a public message to the people of the country Sunday, urged all voters to go to the polls Tuesday.

The president himself will journey to his old home in Northampton, Mass., to cast his ballot. Mr. Coolidge's message said: "Let no voters abdicate their sovereign right of self government at the election on Tuesday by failing to vote."

Fought Gallantly for Week to Free Self from Grip of Illness

London—(P)—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, noted author and spiritualist Monday paid tribute to the late Harry Houdini as "the world's master trickster."

"His death is a great shock and a deep mystery to me," he said. "He was a teetotaler did not smoke, and was one of the cleanest living men I have ever known. I greatly admired him, and cannot understand how the end came for one so youthful."

"We were great friends," he told me much of his conduct, but never secrets regarding his tricks. How he did them, I do not know. We agreed upon everything excepting spiritualism."

Detroit—(P)—Henry Houdini's mysterious feats of escape which thrilled spectators throughout the world in his life Monday were locked in the mystery of death.

The magician, hailed by his fellow workers as the greatest of them all, died here Sunday night, taking with him the secrets of how he escaped from manacles, chains, coffins, straight jackets and other contrivances which no other man ever had duplicated under his challenge.

Houdini's managers announced that his own methods never were revealed. Houdini performed the usual run of magical tricks and gained considerable notice for his untiring attacks on spirit mediums and his adeptness in releasing himself from almost any kind of confinement that could be devised.

ASTOUNDING PERFORMANCES
In one of his favorite tricks he permitted himself to be bound hand and foot in a box wrapped with ropes and chains and placed under water. He escaped from thousands of straight jackets, picked innumerable locks and

SUPREME COURT TO ACT ON WATER SUIT

New York's Request Is Taken Under Advisement by Highest Tribunal

Washington, D. C.—(P)—New York's request for permission to be heard by Charles E. Hughes, master appointed by the supreme court in the controversy arising out of the diversion of water from Lake Michigan, was taken under advisement Monday by the court.

Counsel for New York informed the court the state desired to participate with Wisconsin, Michigan and the other lake states in the hearings which are scheduled to begin here Nov. 8, but sought for Illinois and the Chicago Sanitary district opposed.

Motions were filed Monday by Arkansas and Mississippi, asking permission to join with other Mississippi river state supporting the sanitary district and Illinois.

EXPECT RESIGNATION OF LACROSSE NORMAL HEAD
Madison—(P)—The resignation of Dr. Ernest Ashton Smith as president of the Red Cross Normal school was expected to be presented to the state board of education Monday morning after the school regents here Monday afternoon. Dr. Smith has been appointed president of Toledo university and it is expected that the normal board will act favorably on his request for release.

BLOODHOUNDS USED TO TRAIL MISSING WOMAN
Ashland—(P)—Bloodhounds, brought from Mauston, three times trailed the path of Mrs. C. J. Boley of Mellon, from her home to the power dam pond in Bad river at Mellon, after searching parties scoured the woods and dragged the river for the body of the woman, who disappeared late Friday afternoon.

Saturday night the pond was drained with no results. Driftwood is being run out of the pond Monday and the river will be dynamited in several places in further efforts to locate the body.

RESTAURANT OWNER IS SLUGGER EARLY MONDAY
Milwaukee—(P)—Slugged until she was bleeding profusely, Mattie Bouquet, 40, proprietress of a restaurant was robbed of $450 in cash while going to work at 5 o'clock Monday morning. The woman's screams brought a milkman but her assailant had fled.

FILE CHARGES AGAINST 2 IN CANTON DEATH

Alleged Bootleggers Held for First Degree Murder in Mellett Slaying

Cleveland, O.—(P)—First degree murder charges were filed here Monday against Ben Nadel and Dan Pfaff, Cleveland, said by police to be bootleggers, in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher. The warrants were brought here by Detective Ora Slater, special investigator in the Mellett murder, and Police Chief Wise of Canton. The charges were filed to prevent release of the two men in habeas corpus charges which have been filed in common pleas court.

The warrants were issued at Canton and signed by Prosecutor C. B. McClintock of Stark co. Filing of the charges against Pfaff and Nadel followed investigation here by Cleveland police of the "hideout" here of Patrick Eugene McDermott, while a nationwide search was being made for him in connection with the murder of Mellett.

BADGER KLAN JURY IS STILL IN DEADLOCK

Marquette—(P)—The jury in the Marquette Ku Klux Klan riot trial here remained deadlocked at 9 o'clock Sunday night when they were ordered to retire.

The jury has established a new record having been in session since 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The jurors came into court Saturday noon and asked the court to explain the meaning of "reasonable doubt," a phrase given them in their instructions. The jury resumed deliberations at 8 o'clock Monday morning.

HARNESS COMPANY HEAD IS DEAD IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee—(P)—James M. Walsh, 50, president of the Walsh Harness company died early Sunday. He underwent an operation 10 days ago. He was a graduate of Oshkosh Normal school.

Queen Marie Gets Inside Dope From Dakota Farms

Queen Marie's Train Enroute to Fargo, N. D.—(P)—Queen Marie of Rumania, turned to North Dakota farmers Monday to ask their advice how to help the farmers of her own country.

At a radio station in St. Paul Sunday night the queen invited Dakota farmers to meet her Monday to discuss agriculture with her. At succeeding places she arranged to take into her car two farmers and their wives and in informal chats with them learn how they till the soil what their crops are, how they manage their homes and how they reap a profit from their acres.

An Indian bonnet awaited her majesty at Mandan, where North Dakota Indians, in tribal costumes arranged a dance in the queen's honor. To further enliven the day the royal party also welcomed an opportunity to ride horseback at Medora where in the bad lands section a rodeo was assembled.

REED ATTACKS CAL'S FAILURE TO TAKE STAND

Missouri Senator Renounces Lack of Action on "Corrupt Practices"

Chicago—(P)—President Coolidge's name has been brought into the mid-west campaign finale in a eleven hour political field session by Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, Missouri, and in a telegram from C. Bascom Slemp, formerly secretary to the president, to Frank L. Smith, the Illinois Republican senatorial nominee.

Senator Reed, whose Kansas City address Sunday night was broadcast by Chicago station WGN, alluded to "the president's failure to interfere with the infamous practices of politicians working directly under him, and vigorously denounced what he termed 'political' corruptions—that have rocked the decent elements of America during the last two Republican administrations."

He also asserted that "the president should denounce Frank L. Smith, who received the campaign money from public utilities which he controlled."

Mr. Slemp, who formerly served in congress with Smith, in expressing his hope of success in Tuesday's election, said in part:

SLEMP APPROVES SMITH
"No interested individuals may say how, when the election is over, everybody will interpret the result as an endorsement or repudiation of the administration of President Coolidge."

"I hope that the great prosperous state of Illinois endorses, approves and sympathizes with this wonderful administration and will say 'no' by electing you to the senate and by not diverting to side issues. This is the only way they can say it."

FOUR ARE KILLED IN DETROIT FIGHT

"Killer" Cunniffe Shot by Pal Who Is Killed by Policeman

Detroit—(P)—The criminal career of James "Killer" Cunniffe, sought in connection with a half dozen major crimes including murder and mail robbery, came to an end here Sunday in a furious pistol battle, which cost the lives of three other persons and resulted in the wounding of two more.

"The Killer" and an unidentified woman companion were shot to death by a pal, a man known as William Olsen, who in turn was killed by a police officer, but only after he had shot to death another officer and wounded a bystander.

The slain policeman was Ernest Jones, 35, patrolman. Ephraim Rancour killed Olsen in the exchange of shots after he himself had been wounded. Ernest Burns, a resident of a fashionable apartment house where the shooting occurred was struck by a stray bullet.

The officers had answered a call to the apartment house to investigate a report of shooting there. When the wounded Rancour finally gained entrance he found the bullet riddled bodies of Cunniffe and the woman who apparently had been slain by their companion. Approximately $10,000 in currency was scattered about the apartment and police expressed the belief the three had quarreled over a division of the money, believed to have been loot obtained in robberies.

TRIAL OPENS

REV. J. FRANK NORRIS

TEXAS PASTOR ON TRIAL FOR MURDER TODAY

Rev. J. Frank Norris, Fiery Preacher, Shot Lumberman, Charge

Fort Worth, Texas—(P)—Attorneys for Dr. J. Frank J. Norris charged with the murder of Dexter E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman Monday filed a motion for a change of venue on the ground that Dr. Norris could not obtain a fair and impartial trial in Tarrant co.

Fort Worth, Tex.—(P)—The Rev. J. Norris, fiery pastor of the First Baptist church here, who for nearly 20 years has been identified with reform movements of state and national scope Monday faced trial on a charge of slaying D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman in the church study, July 17, last.

With more than 100 witnesses summoned, 66 of whom were to testify for the defense, and a special venire of 500 drawn, opposing counsel have indicated detailed evidence will be introduced covering Dr. Norris' part in controversies on evolution, the Ku Klux Klan, political issues and the scriptures.

TO PLEAD SELF-DEFENSE
Defense counsel are expected to base their case on a plea of self-defense in conformity to a statement Dr. Norris issued to R. E. Hanger, states attorney, in which he maintained Chipps threatened him when the lumberman called at the study to protest attacks against the administration of Mayor H. C. Meehan. Criticisms of Mayor Meehan appeared in the Searchlight, church newspaper.

L. H. Nutt, an elder of the church, is the principal defense witness. Nutt claims he was in the study during an argument in which he declared Chipps threatened bodily harm to Dr. Norris.

BOY IS WITNESS
Carl Glazco, 14, has signed a statement for the prosecution, stating he saw Chipps shot to death in an ante-room leading to the study. State detectives who investigated the shooting reported a pool of blood on the ante-room floor. Both Nutt and Norris declare the shooting occurred in the study where Chipps' body was found.

Application for change of venue charged that a "combination" exists against Norris in Fort Worth and Tarrant co. This "combination" the document declared is composed of enemies the fundamentalist minister has made by his attacks on Roman Catholics, vice rings, evolutionists, Fort Worth city officials and others.

THREE ARE KILLED IN WEEKEND ACCIDENTS
Janesville—(P)—Two women and a man were killed in three automobile accidents in Janesville and vicinity over the weekend. Mrs. Amelia Finch, 52, Madison, leaped from a car which she thought was on fire and received a broken neck. Mary Patterson, 65, Sugar Creek, was killed when she ran over by a truck while walking to church five miles north of Elkhorn. Herbert Halsena, 45, Beloit, died of internal injuries received in an automobile wreck in Janesville. Two drivers are under arrest as a result of the Patterson and Halsena accidents.

TWO BERLIN MEN ARE KILLED IN ACCIDENT
Fond du Lac—(P)—While on their way to work at Lawson's, the former Victor Lawson estate at Green Lake, early Monday, Fred Astrick, 51, and Joe Stelmor, 56, carpenters of Berlin, were killed when their automobile turned over just outside Berlin city limits.

FASCISTI MOB KILLS BOY, 18, WHO SHOT DUCE

Blackshirt Leader Misses Death by Inches in Sixth Attempt

PREMIER KEEPS NERVE Would-be Assassin Dies Several Minutes After Firing Shot

Rome—(P)—Pope Pius, informed of the attempt on Premier Mussolini, immediately sent a message deploring the attack and congratulating the Fascist chief on his escape.

Warren D. Robbins, counselor of the American legation, was also among the first to telegraph congratulations to the premier.

Rome—(P)—The youth who attempted Mussolini's life at Bologna Sunday, and who was killed by the crowd surrounding the premier, was identified Monday as Anteo Zamboni, son of a Bologna printer.

Bologna, Italy—(P)—Having escaped assassination for the sixth time in the four years he has been premier, Benito Mussolini, whose slogan is "live in danger," was undaunted as ever Monday as search was made for accomplices of a youth who tried to kill "Il Duce" and then was killed by infuriated Fascist Sunday.

As Mussolini was leaving the stadium after opening the Congress for the Advancement of Science a slender, blond youth, about 18 years old, pressed forward toward his automobile and fired an automatic pistol.

STARTED TO FIRE AGAIN
As the youth started to fire again he was seized by two black-shirted men, who held him, stabbed him 14 times, choked and beat him and then dragged the body through a milling mass of humanity. The youth was slain several minutes after the pistol shot.

The bullet missed only by a fraction of an inch imbedding itself in the premier's chest. It ripped both sides of his coat, cut the sash of the order of Saint Maurice and Saint Lazarus, across his breast, and entered the sleeve of the mayor of Bologna who was sitting in the automobile beside Mussolini.

DUCE IS UNPERTURBED
Mussolini, as when previous attacks were made upon him was unperturbed. As crowds gathered in the path of his automobile, almost overturning it in endeavors to get close enough to ascertain whether he was injured, he sat upright showing not the slightest sign of nervousness. The incident greatly excited the 50,000 persons in the stadium.

Immediately after the shooting, Signor Turati, secretary general of the Fascist party in a proclamation to the black shirts indicated that accomplices would be vigilantly sought and punished.

Mussolini had just started to motor to his home in Forlì when the attack was made. When the premier reached home he received a message of congratulations from King Victor Emmanuel. In all the large cities there were processions of joy.

DOPESTERS FIGURE NEW SENATE WILL BE HOSTILE TO CALVIN

Democrats Almost Certain to Gain Enough Senators to Acquire Control

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge will begin the second half of his elective term March 4, with a hostile Senate and a House closely divided between Republicans and Democrats.

Throwing out the foolish claims and guess made for publication by the various campaign managers that is the unvarnished foregone conclusion of Tuesday's elections. The Democrats gleeful proclaim all of this and more. The Republicans privately concede it and privately think that it won't be such a bad thing after all.

As for the Senate the turn of the cycle has brought up a Democratic year. That is all there is to that. But the Democrats must crash through the G. O. P. line for a smashing victory or the victory will be short-lived for the 1928 cycle so far as the Senate is concerned favors the Republicans.

The explanation of the Senate favors is simple. Thirty-two Senators are elected every two years. There are 88 Senators in all, and the founding fathers so arranged it that two-thirds of the Senators always would be men of experience.

Due to the death of Senator Ralston of Indiana, there are 33 candidates up for election to the Senate this year. Robinson of Indiana for an unexpired term.

Of the thirty-three Senators who must face the voters Tuesday, twenty-six are Republicans and only seven are Democrats. The seven Democrats come from Southern states. The twenty-six Republicans include at least seven accidental Senators brought in on the Harding landslide in 1920 and come from normally Democratic states. It would take a political earthquake to shake any of the seven southern state Democrats from their seats. It would take something about as strong to keep at least five of the sitting Republicans in the seats they now occupy.

But when Democrats smile over the situation the Republicans merely smile and suggest that the Democrats had better make their Senate victory big if they want it to last for long, because the turn of the wheel in the Senate in 1928 favors the G. O. P. Thirty-three Senatorial candidates will again line up at the barrier in 1928, and just that of the 1928 Democratic class includes at least fourteen from normally Democratic glibblers, while the 1928 Democratic class includes at least fourteen from normally Democratic states.

Here are facts that will aid you when you begin to figure out the Senatorial election Tuesday night. There are 23 Senators who will hold over whatever the result Tuesday. Of these holdovers thirty-four are Democrats and thirty-one are nominally Republicans, but in the Republican classifications are included Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, La Follette of Wisconsin, Howell of Nebraska, Couzens of Michigan, McMaster of South Dakota and Norris of Nebraska.

So the Democrats have to start with thirty-four dependable hold-overs and the Republicans have twenty-four dependable hold-overs.

It takes 49 members of the Senate to make a majority. The Democrats starting with their thirty-four hold-overs and their seven southern cinched have forty-one seats certain in the next Congress.

To start with the doubtful states, both Democrats and Republicans say privately that two of them, Oklahoma and Arizona, are not doubtful at all. Democrats will take these two states. In Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Colorado and Oregon the Democrats have the best of it. In four or five other states, the Democrats have an even chance. At the minimum, the Democrats should have 48 seats in the next Senate and the Republicans 41. This would place the question of chairmanships in the hands of one man—Shipstead of Minnesota, a farmer-labor Senator and make him the most powerful of all Senators for his vote would decide whether the Republicans were to retain the chairmanships or whether they would be turned over to the Democrats.

Indicated victors in states where it is possible to get a rather clear line up are:

Republicans: Bingham, Connecticut; Brookhart, Iowa; Curtis, Kansas; Dale, Vermont; Jones, Washington; Moses, New Hampshire; Norbeck, South Dakota; Vare, Pennsylvania; Shortridge, California; Nye, North Dakota.

Democrats: Broussard, Louisiana; Hayden, Arizona; Caraway, Arkansas; Barkley, Kentucky; Fletcher, Florida; George, Georgia; Thomas, Oklahoma; Baker, Nevada; Overman, North Carolina; Smith, South Carolina; Black, Alabama; Tyding, Maryland; Hawes, Missouri and Haney, Idaho.

Doubtful: Indiana, two seats; Massachusetts, Idaho, Utah, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado, Utah, New York and Ohio.

Among the surprises in non-partisan figuring here today is the fact that Oklahoma is put down as certain for Thomas, Democratic Senatorial candidate, and Benedict, Republican candidate for Governor, is given an excellent chance of winning.

Another surprise is that Wisconsin is put down as doubtful, although in former calculations, Blaine, irregular who captured the Republican nomination, had been figured sure of winning. Latest reports here are that there will be more anti-Blaine votes than Blaine votes in Wisconsin. Whether or not Blaine wins depends upon how the votes between Titmore, Kearney and Rosa, the other Wisconsin candidates are divided.

One thing is certain. The Senate is lost to President Coolidge. Whether it is a coalition of Democrats and Republicans is the question to be determined.

PUPILS PUNISH SELVES AS THEY VIOLATE RULES

A decided improvement in school deportment is reported in the third grade class of Fourth ward school, taught by Miss Dott L. Smith in which the children punish themselves for infractions of school rules. The "give and take" system is the name applied to the punishments in the grade, and it is based on the principal that the individuals are innocent until they are proved guilty.

Each pupil starts the beginning of each six weeks term with 100 per cent in citizenship or as it is sometimes called deportment, the teacher said. When he commits some misdemeanor, a penalty is imposed of the loss of a point or several points from his original grade, and the child goes to the record which is placed on the back wall of the classroom and strikes down his standing.

Likewise, if he does some deed of special merit he is given extra points, and thus may earn back those he has lost. Miss Smith maintained that the pride of the child was hurt in penalizing himself and his conduct was improved. During the first six weeks term only one child had 100 per cent, but at the end of the second term it is expected that several will have perfect records, according to the standings reported now.

BETA SIGMA PHI ARRANGES FOR BIRTHDAY PARTY

Plans for the twenty-fifth anniversary and homecoming celebration of Beta Sigma Phi fraternity at Lawrence college in June were made at the annual meeting of the Fox River valley alumni association at the Conway hotel Saturday night. FILLING STATION EXPENSES KEEP GAS PRICES HIGH

Gross Margin of Profit Is from Five to Six Cents a Gallon

Madison—(AP)—Building of too many gasoline service stations was given as one of the causes of "high prices and profits in the sale of gasoline during the past summer in a statement by the Wisconsin department of markets here today.

The two grounds were given in the statement as follows: first, the inequality of competitors' and second, the expense involved in building of too many service stations.

"Oil companies in the state," the department pointed out, "have had an average gross margin in gasoline of more than 5c during the touring season and more than 6c in recent weeks, whereas a margin of 4c is generally conceded by oil men to be large enough. After the reduction of 1c on October 26 the spread between the cost in tank-cars and the selling price in tank wagons was over 5½c, it is said. Comparison with earlier years shows that the tank wagon price this year has averaged almost as high as in 1923, a year which is characterized as 'notorious' with regard to gasoline prices.

"The Standard Oil company's price policy, is to leave them in doubt," the policy is to leave the determination of a fair retail price to its competitors. That these competitors do not accept the responsibility, because of fear of Standard or out of respect for the authority of its leadership, is the conclusion drawn from the retail prices of 1926. To show that increased costs are also responsible for this year's prices, figures are cited to the effect that gasoline consumption has increased only two and a half times since 1921, while the number of service stations has increased five and a half times. In the last two years stations have increased five and a half times. In the last two years stations have increased 100 per cent, and gasoline consumption only 33 per cent. This excess building program results from excessive profits, the department says, and also increases the cost of doing business and makes wider margins necessary.

"The oil jobbers are trying to lift themselves by their own bootstraps and during 1926 they have pretty well succeeded. The cost of this feat to the consuming public in Wisconsin is, we believe, conservatively estimated at 1½ per gallon, or three and three quarter million dollars a year. The cost to the smaller jobber is going to be even more drastic when, as we believe it will, the time arrives for the larger companies to make their investments pay in the face of a gasoline consumption which will show little increase from year to year. In the past year the oil business in the state has been building for a 25 per cent increase in demand. From January to September the state inspections of gasoline show an increase in consumption of only 10 per cent over 1925.

GUARDSMEN HELP SCOUTS GET BADGES

Marksmanship Training to Be Given by National Guard Officers

Boy Scouts of Appleton who desire to qualify for the marksmanship merit badge will be able to take the tests soon through the courtesy of officers of Co. D, 12th Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, according to P. O. Keicher, valley scout executive, who arranged for the work. Mr. Keicher will start immediately after the Court of Honor and instructions will cover about ten sessions, given once a week.

The marksmanship merit badge has attracted a great many scouts but has been difficult for them to obtain. The requirements are strict and the safety code is invaluable but scout leaders have had difficulty in securing the proper instruction and equipment. The course will include instructions in proper care of the weapons, safety measures and correcting sighting and methods.

Mr. Keicher is attempting to make similar arrangements for Neenah-Menasha Scouts with the assistance of Col. Frank Schneller and other national guard and reserve officers of the two cities. Later efforts also will be made to make this training available for Kaukauna and Kimberly, Scouts.

Scouting has been recognized by educational institutions as having a safe and sane and pedagogically sound educational program, Mr. Keicher said. Most of the scout requirements may

U. S.-SWISS SPECIAL MAIL IS ANNOUNCED

A special delivery system to Switzerland, to become effective at once, will be linked closely to school work and this is particularly true of the merit badges. The merit badge work covers 67 subjects. Of these the largest number such as agriculture, architecture, art, astronomy, botany, business, chemistry, civics and many others are almost always acquired with the cooperation of public school teachers and the certificates of fitness usually are signed by the same teachers. Other subjects, which may not be covered by public school work, are easily accomplished through the cooperation of skilled members of the crafts and trades, or may again be related to public school work through departments of manual training.

has been announced by the United States Postal department, according to word received Friday at the Appleton postoffice. The service is to start at the date of announcement. Special delivery is furnished upon payment of 20 cents in addition to the regular postage. Letters to be sent in this manner are to be marked "Express (Special Delivery)."

The oldest couple in England is believed to be Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Taylor. Each is 102.

NEENAH YOUNGSTERS
QUIET ON HALLOWEEN

Neenah—Halloween passed off very quietly in Neenah this year, with exception of pranks of a few youngsters who were ordered to appear before the police chief Monday morning. No damage of any consequence was reported. A number of house parties were held. The special police officers placed on the force for the evening made no arrests.

PASTOR PREACHES
FAREWELL SERMON

Neenah—St. Paul's English Lutheran church was filled to capacity Sunday afternoon by members of the congregation and friends of the Rev. A. J. Sommers, to listen to his farewell sermon before leaving for Denver, Col. where he has taken the position as pastor of a large church. Rev. Sommers has been pastor since the organization of the church in Neenah. Short talks were given by officials of the church and special music was rendered by the choir.

CANDIDATES FILE STATEMENTS OF ELECTION COSTS

Independent Candidates Have Largest Expenditures Thus Far

Campaign expense accounts of virtually all candidates seeking county offices at the general election next Tuesday were on file with County Clerk John E. Hantschel at noon Saturday.

Several of those running without opposition merely recorded the fact that they spent no money between the primary and this time. A final account, according to law, whether the candidate has made any expenditures, must be filed with Mr. Hantschel before the close of the business day on Nov. 6.

The independent candidates, Carl J. Becker, for clerk of circuit and municipal court, and Earl G. Schwartz, seeking office as sheriff, led the list in amounts spent but to some degree this is counteracted through money spent by the Republican Campaign committee in behalf of the straight ticket, it was declared.

Joseph Witmer, secretary of the county committee, filed an account showing donations to the party fund of $210 and general expenditures of $127 so far. Harry A. Shannon, seeking re-election as clerk of courts, listed expenses of $133.77 of which $50 was a contribution to the county fund; Otto H. Zuehlke, Republican candidate for sheriff, filed expense of $79, also showing a campaign contribution of $50.

Mr. Becker's expense account shows that he has spent $385.55, much devoted to advertising, and Under-sheriff Schwartz, costs run up to $383.75.

Oscar Schmlege, candidate for the assembly from the First district, spent $10.

County Treasurer Marie Ziegenhagen and County Clerk Hantschel, running for re-election without opposition had no direct expenses; Albert G. Koch, registrar of deeds, incumbent, donated $25 to the republican jackpot and Fred A. Mueller, running for the assembly from the Independent list in the First district spent $40 for advertising, his statement declared.

L. M. Schindler, county surveyor, has had no campaign expenses either before the primaries or now, it was indicated from the records.

GRAD OF '97 NAMED TO CHURCH POST IN EAST

Archie D. Ball, a graduate of Lawrence college in the class of 1897, has been appointed superintendent of the Newark conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, according to word received by the alumni association at the college. Mr. Ball has been pastor of the Methodist church at Ridge-wood, N. J.

The first project to be undertaken by the new superintendent will be the building of a 20-story office and church which will cost about $3,000,000. A. P. Anderson, alumni secretary said.

TANNER IS CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESSMAN

Dr. H. B. Tanner of Eastland, Tex., and a former resident of Kaukauna is a candidate for congressman from the Seventeenth Texas district according to information received in Appleton. Dr. Tanner opposes the noted Congressman Blanton, well known in Congress because of his peculiarities, on the contention that Mr. Blanton needs a rest to prepare for the battle to win Senator Mayfield's seat.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, hollow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c. adv.

Businessmen Divided On Whether Petting Is Bad

When your ordinarily trusty stenographer seems totally unable to locate the correct keys on her typewriter, and bawls out the office boy for nothing at all, and takes two hours for luncheon, and generally acts as no self-respecting shorthand queen should act, don't think that the mortage is due, or that her old mother is dangerously ill. It probably is not that at all. The chances are ten to one that she was merely on a petting party the night before.

At least, that is what the manager of a large department store in the east would have us believe. According to him, it is a simple matter to pick out the petters in your organization. They have more touchy dispositions and less efficiency than the girls who abstain from that gentlemanly sport. And the professor of biology in a large eastern college agrees with the businessman. The co-ed's physical and nervous system, this professor thinks, suffers many ill effects from what our old fashioned ancestors used to call "spooning."

The result on the girl's mind can also be seen. She cannot concentrate on the task in hand, and as a result her scholastic average falls. But out in the Middle West either the young women are more robust, or else long practice has insured them to the hardships of necking. The head of one of Appleton's largest stores claims that he has never noticed any results of petting among the girls that the company employs. "I suppose there is no doubt," this man said, "that the girl who systematically indulges in gay night life suffers from her dissipation. I am no physician, and I cannot say that there would be any ill effects on the health of a girl of that sort. But the things that go with 'wild parties'—late hours, loss of sleep, liquor and cigarettes—certainly are not good for a girl. However, this company makes no effort to check up on the petters behind our counters. We do not bother the girls unless they are discovered to have bad characters."

And I guess a girl that pets does not necessarily have a bad character." She is probably right about that. If she isn't, then we know an awful lot of girls that we shouldn't. The scholastic viewpoint here also seems to differ somewhat from that in the East. A professor was asked what he thought of the petting question. "That's a hard thing for me to answer," he replied. "I hate to say anything radical about the girl who lets fellows kiss her, because I have a daughter myself, and my daughter has a porch swing. However, intemperance indulgence in what I hear the shells call 'necking' would probably be bad for a young girl, just as any other kind of intemperance is bad for her. Petting parties that are innocent enough as far as results are concerned might have a bad effect on the minds of those who take part in them. But that is getting close to Freud, the psychology of the subconscious, and this suppressed desire stuff, and I'll have to steer clear of that. You probably wouldn't know what I was talking about, and neither would I."

So it seems to be a question of how much petting a healthy girl can stand. And that is a very, very ticklish subject. The only way to find out, it seems, is by experimenting. Perhaps that is the underlying motive for a lot of the petting that does go on—and then again perhaps it is not. The strange part of all this is that no one seems to be worried about the evil effects upon the men. It's all about the girls. The soda-jerk and haberdashery-dispenser evidently are immune to the evils of petting.

Then, of course, there is the moral side of the question, also. But employers and psychologists are not so greatly interested in that. And after all, a cozy little coupe isn't any more immoral than was the old-time hair-cloth davenport.

Last year $5,762 forest fires in the United States reduced 26,000,000 acres of timber to ruins.

RURAL CHILDREN TO BE GIVEN CARE AT CITY DENTAL CLINIC

Dentists Cooperate With County Nurse to Keep Teeth in Repair

Rural as well as city school children will be given the benefit of the free dental clinic located at the Lincoln school building and sponsored by the Kiwanis club, Dr. W. H. Meeker, director of the clinic, announced. Pupils of the city schools will be cared for on Tuesdays and Wednesdays starting Nov. 9 and the rural children on Fridays.

Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, will examine the teeth of the pupils in the rural schools and will assist the dentists at the clinic. The children will be conveyed to Appleton by the county nurse, it was said. Parents of these children will go through the same procedure for sending to the clinic as city parents. When defective teeth are found in the examinations, the parents will be notified, and if they cannot afford to pay for dental attention, they may sign the request that the clinic do the work.

14 CITY ATTORNEYS IN $2,000 SALARY CLASS

Madison—Six of the 143 cities of Wisconsin pay their city attorneys $3,000 a year or more according to a survey conducted by the municipal information bureau of the University of Wisconsin Extension division. Milwaukee pays $6,300, Kenosha and West Allis, $4,000; Madison, $3,300 and Superior and Racine $3,000.

The legal adviser receives from $2,000 to $3,000 in Appleton, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Janesville, La Crosse, Manitowish, Oshkosh and Wauwatosa. In 15 cities, the attorneys are paid from $1,000 to $2,000 per year. Ashland, Baraboo, Beloit, Chippewa Falls, Cudahy, Eau Claire, Marinette, Rhinelander, Sheboygan, South Milwaukee, Watertown, Wausau and Wausau.

It is estimated that the addition of the revenue from tourists who are brought into the state by the railroads will make the total income from all tourists business, motor and rail, considerably over $100,000,000. At this figure, the foreign tourist business ranks with the first half-dozen industries of the state, only three or four of which produce over $100,000,000 annually.

TOURISTS SPEND 90 MILLION IN STATE

Wisconsin Was Visited by 3,600,000 Tourists in Past Season

Madison—From traffic counts taken in 1926 by the highway commission, it is estimated that about 3,600,000 automobiles from other states visited Wisconsin during the past season and spent $90,000,000 here, according to J. T. Donaghey, state highway engineer. The "foreign" tourist business thus shows an increase over 1925 of about 11 per cent.

While other estimates by various individuals or organizations have been made this year placing the total revenue from the foreign tourists business at considerably higher figures, the highway commission believes that $90,000,000 represents a fairly accurate estimate, with sufficient facts and figures to support it.

OVER 100 MILLION It is estimated that the addition of the revenue from tourists who are brought into the state by the railroads will make the total income from all tourists business, motor and rail, considerably over $100,000,000. At this figure, the foreign tourist business ranks with the first half-dozen industries of the state, only three or four of which produce over $100,000,000 annually. The 1926 traffic count, taken on eight representative days, showed that an average of 10,055 foreign cars entered the state each day over our state trunk highways. In 1925, the number was 9,060.

ABOUT $10 DAILY Information furnished by the tourists themselves indicate that each carried an average of 3.6 persons, the average expenditure per car was $10.65 daily, and the average length of stay in Wisconsin was 3 1/2 days. Computing these figures for the usual 100-day touring season, we arrive at the conclusion that about 3,600,000 foreign tourists (800,000 more than the whole population of Wisconsin), traveling in more than 1,000,000 automobiles, visited the state during 1926.

FOLLOWING HIS MASTER

John W. Reynolds, candidate for attorney general, says he is for the proposed amendment to the constitution which would authorize recall of judges because it "has been indorsed by the Progressive party," and because it will bring us one step nearer government by the people. We think the inference is plain from his statement that the only reason he favors it is because the political machine which permitted him to run for office is its sponsor. Indeed, he practically admits as much. It is no mere coincidence that all of the other lawyers of Wisconsin are opposed to recall, as applied to the judiciary. If Mr. Reynolds were not running for office we have no doubt he would stand with them, for down deep in his heart he knows he is attempting to uphold a fallacious and vicious principle.

As for bringing government closer to the people, it has never been removed farther from them in Wisconsin than under the Progressive regime in recent years. They have not had the slightest voice in the nomination of a single Progressive candidate, state or local. A slate is prepared behind closed doors and the only function the voters perform is to ratify it. No one is permitted to seek nomination for office against the machine's decree, no matter how orthodox and firm a Progressive he may be, except at the peril of being maligned and hounded to death. The primary is completely nullified in principle, and the one time it has not been nullified in fact was when Fred Zimmerman dared to oppose the machine's will. The will of the people means nothing to such an organization. The only will it respects or cares anything about is its own will. Take the present candidates for instance, excepting Zimmerman—every one from senator down to the office Mr. Reynolds is running for; all were selected by a little group of men in a back room at Madison, and when its work was done and it announced months in advance of the primary the men it had decided on for every office within the gift of the people, notice was in effect served that the "nominations were closed" and none others need apply. Is that government by the people? Is that bringing government any nearer the people?

So it is with the proposed recall. The machine which has nullified the primary is merely putting forth another high sounding phrase to catch the ear of the voter and make him believe it is laboring in his behalf. It makes the proposal so extreme as to arouse the resistance of that body of citizens which believes in preserving constitutional guarantees and the integrity of the judiciary, and these citizens are immediately denounced by the ring as "reactionaries" whose purpose is to exploit the people and use the judiciary to that end. This enables it to make an "issue," in which it pictures "government by the people" on the one side and "government by the interests" on the other. The same motif runs through the scheme to give the legislature the power to nullify constitutional decisions of the supreme court. It is to array one class against another in government, even to the extent of wiping out the bill of rights and the constitution itself. It is to capitalize prejudice and feeling into votes, and that is democracy.

The people of Wisconsin ought to know whether their constitutional rights have been respected by the courts, and whether the courts have administered justice. Probably no state in the Union has a cleaner judiciary, or one with a better record down through the years. The reason is because we have succeeded to an unusual degree in keeping the judiciary out of politics. It has administered the law fearlessly, equitably, conscientiously. Is not that what the people want? To subject judges to the recall immediately plunges every judicial office into politics. It can have no other effect. It reduces our judges down to the level of every petty political office in the state, subject to machine control and machine removal. Is that bringing government nearer the people? Is it serving the interests of the people? The judiciary is the one branch of government left which has not yet been successfully tampered with by the politician. We should not let him meddle with it now. If it comes to the point where we cannot trust or expect justice from judges whose independence and freedom from restraint or influence is set up by their tenure of office and manner of election, what could we expect of judges whose election and tenure depended upon the will of politicians—what could we expect of political judges, such as the recall would create?

If the recall amendment is adopted it will simply give the machine that many more offices to fill and CONTROL—the number of judges in the state. There is nothing whatever in it for the people—their only interest lies in keeping the judiciary clean and out of politics, as it is now. The primary election law may be right in principle, but it has been perverted and nullified in Wisconsin to the point where the people have nothing to say and a political machine composed of a handful of men everything. The recall of judges may sound plausible in principle, but it is utterly wrong, and if adopted its certain perversion will destroy the independence and uprightness of Wisconsin's judiciary.

THE ELECTION

The campaign is at an end. The senatorship stands first in importance to the state. Mr. Blaine should be defeated on his record as governor, and for the further reason that he is the exponent of class hostility. Judge Rosa is a LaFollette Progressive in just as good standing as Blaine, and with a far better platform and program. Judge Rosa believes the political, social and industrial problems of the country can better be solved by cooperation and reason, than by distrust and force. He wishes to correct whatever abuses there may be by understanding and by appeal to men's fairness and honesty. Mr. Blaine stands as a perpetual accuser, arousing men's feeling and cupidity. His idea seems to be that certain classes are natural enemies, and that their relations cannot be harmonized. The dishonest and perfidious are confined exclusively to those who have made a success, acquired wealth or have risen from a lower to a higher station. They are bent on exploiting all others less fortunate, they use unscrupulous methods to better themselves and they are tax dodgers. The fallacy of this pernicious philosophy is that if the human race were afflicted with such weakness it could never be corrected by political measures and reprisals. That would be the last of all remedies.

As a matter of fact, the evils of our government and of society are grossly exaggerated. The 115,000,000 people of the United States enjoy greater comforts, more luxuries, more prosperity, more blessings, more pleasures and opportunities than any other people ever have at any time in the history of the world. There is no other nation that can approach it in these respects. In the last generation our material progress and the advance of political justice has been tremendous. Witness the reduction of working hours, advances in wages, the wide ownership of homes, automobiles, pianos, phonographs, radio apparatus and countless other possessions that go to broaden and enrich life. The man who says America is not making extraordinary headway toward the personal welfare, prosperity and happiness of its people shuts his eyes to mountains of facts.

Do we not want to continue this development? No less could be plainer than that the way to do it is to follow up the work and education and methods that have already wrought so much. Nothing is to be gained by tearing down or attacking the agencies which create wealth, employment, opportunity and the means of better living. So well does labor nationally see this that it no longer thinks of the general strike, but is engaged in highly intelligent and forceful effort to bring about understanding and cooperation between employer and employee, is founding banks, insurance companies and otherwise engaging in pursuits that elevate and strengthen labor and that better enable it to negotiate with capital on an equal basis. This is the road to economic and social betterment, and not the use of strong-arm politics. The politician does not exist who can be legislative or executive act, much less by soap-box denunciation, accomplish the tenth part of what these intelligent labor leaders are doing. The agitators are merely misleading labor. Judge Rosa believes in social equality and equity, but he also believes men can get along together and work out their problems to the common good of all. Mr. Blaine does not seem to think so. He prefers to condemn and denounce; he talks of tax dodgers and Wall Street exploiters. He does not advocate the doctrine of co-operation and understanding. He does not use the language that allays suspicion, appeals to men's fairness and conscience and tends to draw them closer. His attacks can have but one effect, namely, to push them apart and harden them in their dislikes and prejudices. This, we submit, is not the way to perfect our institutions, to lessen evils and to promote social and political betterment. Judge Rosa is a Progressive who believes in the efficacy of justice per se and in its more rapid triumph through peace and accommodation. Mr. Blaine is a belligerent; he is for strife and warfare. He is not only for making men mad at each other, but for keeping them mad. He is for putting down every evil with the sword. He cannot wait for the solution of our problems and differences in a friendly spirit, and in a country which has lead all others from its beginning in the promotion of social and political freedom, equality and material blessings. Men of his type are a sad mistake in political life. They accomplish nothing constructive. They merely make trouble. He should not be elected senator.

For the governorship, Mr. Zimmerman has the call. The only issue Mr. Perry has raised against him is the plan and that is not an issue. Mr. Zimmerman's platform is one to which every fair-minded and progressive citizen of Wisconsin can subscribe. We know of nothing in it over which there could be a legitimate controversy in the administration of state affairs and in our state policies. Mr. Zimmerman therefore deserves to take the governorship by default, and that is evidently what he will do.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only technical knowledge I can only answer by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

BLOW OFF THE URIC ACID

I was about to say as we went to press the other day, when chemical examination reveals an excess of uric acid in the blood or deposit of sodium mono-urate in the joints or soft tissues, no matter what ails the patient, the cure would should from this retention of unburned fuel, is according to our latest knowledge of the subject, that the draft is defective. Uric acid, either the normal proportion in a healthy person's blood or an excess in a person ill of leukemia, pneumonia, nephritis or gout, is a by-product of the incomplete combustion of nitrogenous material from food or from body cells which are oxidized or burned to furnish heat or energy to run the body. If for some reason the supply of oxygen is insufficient, naturally the combustion of such fuel will be poor. Well and good. The thing to do is absorb more oxygen.

In trying to present the subject of uric acid simply and clearly for the benefit of the layman without special technical knowledge, I can only choose a course between Scylla and Charybdis. On the one hand it is impossible to explain uric acid clearly in the space of one article, and the necessity of telling about it in successive installments involves the probability that many readers will get only a part of the story and so misunderstand. On the other hand, the same necessity is likely to confound the charge which "false verbiage" or "doctor's" likes to file against me, that I deliberately carry on to the very verge of divulging some practical information or cure, and then break off with a hint that it will come out in the next issue.

If it were merely a matter of giving the essential positive facts, so far as we know them, about uric acid, that might be done very well in the space I have available in one issue. But the difficulty is that so people know so many things about uric acid which ain't so, and before they can grasp the definite positive facts they must comprehend that what they already know about uric acid is not so. I admit that in my efforts to prepare the reader's mind for the essential facts I do seem to deserve the cryptic compliment which a Boston reader paid me. Dr. Brady's health talks are often instructive, he said, but always diverting.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Monday, Nov. 4, 1901
Marriage licenses were issued to Amelia Lemke and August Bartz, both of Appleton; Herman Boelter and Clara Tomack, both of Appleton; Anton Lehrer, Mukwa and Annie Fischer of Black Creek.

A kitchen shower was to be given that evening at the home of E. Harwood, Jr. and Miss Van Heuklon who were to be married in a few days.
A number of Appleton people were to drive to Nic Hubert's farm at Apple Creek that evening to attend a party given in honor of Mr. Hubert's birthday anniversary.

The marriage of Max Eggers of this city and Annie Knaack of Greenville was to take place the following Wednesday.
The Appleton high school football team was defeated by the Oak Creek high school team the previous Saturday on Lawrence field by the score of 12 to 6. The Appleton team consisted of Zolt, Wolter, Howard, Beyer, Lovell, Ballantyne, Donovan, Kranhold, Hihigan, Johnson.

TEN YEARS AGO

Monday, Oct. 30, 1916
Prof. P. G. W. Keller, principal of Appleton high school, Miss Carrie Morgan, superintendent of schools and W. F. Faulkes, principal of the industrial school were planning to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin State Teachers association to be held at Milwaukee Nov. 2 to 4.
Dr. Samuel Plantz had returned from St. Paul where he delivered several addresses in the $500,000 campaign conducted by Harvard University. A similar campaign was to be conducted here the following fall for the increase of the permanent endowment fund.
Marriage licenses were issued the previous Saturday to Paul Warning of Greenville and Emma Krehner of Ellington; George H. Mueller of Grand Chute and Ella Ness of Maple Creek.

"DIVIDED WE FALL"

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

IN HIS OWN IMAGE

We are told in the Bible that God created man in his own image. And over since then it has been a habit of creators, great and small, to use their own image as a pattern in their creative work.
To what extent this is true is probably not appreciated by the average reader—largely of course because he is unacquainted with the work of the various creators whose image he meets and so he has no way of knowing that the creation is in the image of its creator.

Recently I saw a movie of one of the best known stories of Richard Harding Davis and it recalled the book I had read, twenty years ago. And the outstanding impression the picture left was that the hero had been created in the image of Richard Harding Davis himself. It would be possible to take almost anyone of the novelists or short stories of Richard Harding Davis at random and the image of Davis himself would be found reproduced in the chief male character.

DAVIS WAS ROMANTIC

Richard Harding Davis was a romantic from hair to toenails. To the end of his life he remained a boy who saw himself romantically taking a leading part in heroic exploits. "We are told also that he tried in a feeble way to make those dreams come true. He went to every war that came along, always as a war correspondent, to satisfy his hunger for romantic exploits. He saw himself as a character in a novel and every morning in his life he took a cold bath even if he had to break the ice on a creek in camp; he loved the thought of having his friends think of him as strenuous. It was in the days of Roosevelt and the strenuous life was very much admired.
And nearly every one of the Davis heroes is that kind of a person—Richard Harding Davis under another name. It has sometimes been said that Richard Harding Davis specialized in that type of hero because the public wanted that type. That may be true but it is probably not the whole truth because he ably which more true that he could had only his own pattern of romance. He said that the public liked that type. Had he been born a cynic, his books might never have hit the bull's eye, no matter how well written.

Almost invariably fiction writers begin their careers by creating characters in their own image. One group of writers has taken this habit but by far the larger number keep on doing it all their lives. Knut Hamsun; the Norwegian novelist, is a very good example. All his earlier characters are in his own image. Such books as "Hunger," "The Secret," and "The Work of Art" are very obviously about Knut Hamsun himself—at least about characters created in Knut Hamsun's own image. But in "Growth of the Soil" there is a sharp change. The novelist has escaped from himself and has succeeded in creating characters that are independent of his own personality.
Robert Herrick, American novelist, is a good example of the contrary process. Herrick began by creating characters independent of his own personality. He did this for a number of years and then, in such books as "A Life For a Life" and several others that followed he sharply changed his method and his main characters became images of Robert Herrick.

CREATE OWN IMAGES

Jack London is as good an example as there is in American fiction of a novelist creating people in his own image. I don't recall a single book or short story written by London in which it would not be possible to substitute the name "Jack London" for that of the main character without doing any great violence to the reader's sense of fitness.
All of which is very natural. It is human to admire one's own personality. All the romances of all ages are based on that fact. Even the most modest person may be presumed to think very well of himself and it is entirely natural that his fictional creations should be people much like himself. It sometimes happens that later he can regard his own personality critically instead of emotionally and it is then that he learns to create characters divorced entirely from his own image.

The Question Box

Q. Has other large city been bought as cheaply as was New York? E. H. H.
A. The site of the city of Ottawa was originally settled by Philemon Wright of New England. He later transferred his right to this land to Nicholas Sparks to payment of

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.
Tree-frogs of various genera are to be found in most countries of the world and are considered by many naturalists the most interesting group of tailless batrachians. Certainly they are the most beautiful.
Any attempt to pick out the most graceful, however, would be challenged by the champions of other claimants. Putting aside as frivolous the suggestion that it is a judgment of Pauls would be in favor of Rana esculenta, it is suggested that the golden apple might well be awarded to the Arum frog or Rappia horstreckii. This entrant for frog honors may be found on parts of the Cape Flats of South Africa.
Though from wetting grasses, reeds and low bushes, near ponds or rivers its typical site is in the arum bloom. Its usual position is down in the bloom. Its color in this position being ivory-white, its pink legs and sucker-provided feet being tucked right up under it, a casual glance into the bloom might pass it over. In darker surroundings its color approaches that of Jacobean oak, the change being a skin, rather than a sight, reflex.
The male has a very delicate vocal sac, the voice being a loud "Chee, chee, chee." The eggs are laid in clusters of about 20 attached to the roots of water-weeds on the stems of grasses.

A BEAUTIFUL FROG

Tree frogs often resemble their chosen surroundings and possess a remarkable ability to assume colors that match their habitats. Our common American species is so like the gray bark of the oak or maple that even the one trilling on the lawn may elude all our efforts to detect him at his musical.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York, —(P)— See-sawing up and down Broadway, I am led to believe that the English invasion this winter is to be unusually severe. From Kalamazoo to Klamath Falls the voice of the erudite platformer will be heard in the land. . . . To the several British literary agents in town have just been added John Masfield and Hugh Walpole. . . . Masfield used to be a bartender down in Greenwich Village. . . . The "place where" still stands though the be-aproned barman is sadly missing. . . . But, thanks to his saloon experiences the world has that very fine poem, "The Everlasting Meroy." . . .

Walpole says John Bull's people are ravenous on the subject of American life and are buying up all editions of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and "Babbitt." . . .

Saw the shocks of red hair that identifies Jim Tully, the ex-hobo and "bad boy of Hollywood," who came to town to attend the opening of his new play. . . . Jim tells me the movie world is a never-ending parade of amusement. . . . "If the actors would only stay themselves," he wails. "They are trying to get literary and arty. And they are so beautiful and dumb and amusing just as they are." . . . Tully it was who coined the phrase: "As illustrated as a film critic." Which should hold them for a while. . . .

Saw Handy, the "daddy of the blues," at a party given in his honor up in Harlem. . . . And, in case you've never heard the tale, he tells me that the blues for "blues," came to him while out with a minstrel troupe in the south. . . . They were waiting for a train when he came upon a darkey, strumming a banjo and using a mouth organ as a pick, after the fashion of the Hawaiians. . . .

And the music he was making had never been heard of before. Handy. . . . When his season ended the minstrel totted down his recollection of the music he had heard and re-wrapped. . . . The result was the "Memphis Blues" and "Limbo Blues." . . .

Saw George Carpentier, who used to be a boxer or something but now is quite the stepping stone of the New York night clubs, and the manner in which he continues to appear in the pleasure marts indicates that he either saved his money or has a good job. . . .

Saw quite the most celebrated crowd of the season at the opening of "Deep River." . . . Among Lady Astor and Burke, who never seems to grow old, and Arthur Hopkins, who seems to have taken on another ten pounds with his title of impresario. . . . First, with her inevitable cherry-bud comb. Sometimes they're red, sometimes they're white but always they are cherries, ripening season after season in her hair. . . .

Malcom St. Clair, the movie director, with a new cane. . . .

Enno Moisevich, who organized 300 East Side brats into a mouth organ orchestra and started on his way to fortune. . . .

By the way, this used to be back beer season didn't it?

"loess plains." Please give exact meaning of this term? J. H. O.
A. The word "loess" is a geological term which means a pale, usually yellowish, homogeneous calcareous clay loam or fine sand of Pleistocene or Holocene age found chiefly bordering on river valleys or serving to form valley bluffs and extending over a wide area of central Europe, Asia, and the United States.

Q. When is the best time of the year to rid farm animals of lice? M. C.
A. The Department of Agriculture says that lice on farm animals should be cleaned up before the cold weather sets in. Lice on horses, cattle, and other animals are most troublesome in winter and at that time it is very difficult to treat them. It is therefore better to do this work during the fall. The effect of lice, both biting and sucking kinds, is to annoy the animals, thus interfering with their feeding, rest and comfort. For horses and cattle arsenical dips, coal-tar creosote dips, and nicotine solutions are recommended. For dipping hogs crude-petroleum and coal-tar creosote dips are effective remedies.

U. S. PROBES 460 CLAIMS FOR SHARE IN INDIAN MONEY

Indians Who Left Reservation Seek Part of Tribal Funds

Investigation during the last six months by James T. Rahilly, department of interior, Washington, D. C., will be embodied in a report by Mr. Rahilly which will determine the status of more than 460 persons of mixed blood, claiming to be descendants of the Menominee Indian tribe. As such they are making a claim for per capita payments from the log fund from the Department of Indian Affairs. Mr. Rahilly is at Keneshaw. He is unable to say when his report will be completed.

The claimants, according to Mr. Rahilly, live in various sections of the United States and Canada. The majority are in the Fox River valley. They claim to be the direct descendants of Menominee Indians, who chose to leave the reservation.

The fund consists of money received from timber on the reservation near Shawano. One fifth of this money is spent by the secretary of interior for Indian welfare work and four fifths, and interest, is spent for the Indians or paid them on a per capita basis.

The fund has grown to about $3,000,000. One of the rules is that only those born on the reservation are entitled to a share of the money. The 460 alleged descendants wish to share in the per capita payments and they are presenting their case to the secretary of the interior.

In May, 1925, a test case brought by Alexander Besaw, of De Pere was decided by the court of appeals at Washington, D. C., in his favor. The court ruled that Besaw's mother at the time of her death was a member of the tribe in good standing and because of that fact Besaw was entitled to receive the per capita payment. This case, however, will only affect the other claimants if they can prove their parents were members in good standing at the time of their death. If they do prove this they will be entitled to share in the per capita payments.

At the time of the decision of the Besaw case it was taken for granted by the other members of the group that the decision also allowed them to share in the payments. This, however, is not true, according to Mr. Rahilly. It was especially assigned to investigate personally the claims of each of the 460 applicants. The work has been in progress for the last six months and Mr. Rahilly is preparing his report at this time.

At a meeting of the general council of the tribe last Saturday evening the members voted on the status of the 460 claimants. Only three of the 460 were recognized as members of the tribe. This vote will be embodied in the report to the secretary of the interior, according to Mr. Rahilly.

After the report reaches the secretary at Washington he will make a minute study of the situation and will then make a ruling on each individual case. Should he decide that the individual was not entitled to enrollment, the privilege of that claimant to carry the case to court. The government has based some of its contention on the fact that many half breeds received payment of some money in 1849 and thus relinquished their claim on any share of money afterward acquired.

The first test case, that of Besaw, was not carried to the Supreme court of the United States. It is said, because of the death of the chief counsel for the defense. However, the next case to reach the court probably will be taken to the supreme court.

The status of all the claimants involved will probably be determined by the decision of this court.

TEACH SOPHOMORES HOW TO USE LIBRARY

Efficient use of the library is being taught the sophomore English classes at Appleton high school under direction of the class teachers and Miss Ruth Mielke, librarian. The students will be instructed in the functions and materials of the library with the purpose of teaching them how to use the library to the greatest advantage.

The classification of books, the use of the card catalog, reader's guide, and how to find and use well known reference books will be included in the course of instruction. Teachers who will take part in the work are Miss Min Smith, Adam Atchison, Miss Ethel Nesthus, Miss Dora Kelly and Miss Edith Brunschwiler.

NURSES HOLD JOINT MEETING IN FOND DU LAC

The Sixth District Nurses association of which Appleton is a member, will entertain nurses of the twelfth district association at St. Agnes hospital in Fond du Lac Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6. Business meetings of the districts will be held separately and the delegates to the annual state convention in Madison Oct. 11, 12 and 13, will give reports at their respective meetings. Miss Jane Barclay of Appleton, represented the sixth district at the convention.

A motion picture sent by the state board of health will be shown at the joint program, and Miss Eunice Segal, a student at Appleton high school, will entertain with a reading.

CLERGYMEN MEET AT ALL SAINTS CHURCH

Vice President of Episcopal National Council to Be Chief Speaker

Lewis B. Franklin, vice president and treasurer of the National Council of the Episcopal church will address a meeting of the rectors and vestrymen of the Appleton section of the Fond du Lac district at a meeting at All Saints church here on Nov. 2. The Rev. H. S. Gately is pastor of the local church.

Mr. Franklin will address meetings at Wausau, Nov. 1; Oshkosh, Nov. 3; Manitowish, Nov. 4; Fond du Lac, Nov. 5. Mr. Franklin's address is in connection with plans for the promotion of the world wide program of the church for 1927.

The budget for the coming year embraces a total expenditure of $4,212,370. The work of the church is apportioned among the various dioceses which in turn fix the quota to be raised in each parish. All funds for this program are raised within the church.

This budget includes items for all church purposes throughout the world and embodies in addition to home projects in the various dioceses and missionary districts of the United States, work underway in China, Japan, the Philippines, Africa, Alaska and Latin America.

FILE PETITIONS FOR ROAD AID IN COUNTY

Several petitions have been filed with the county highway commission for road aid next year, it was reported Thursday. The petitions received are requests for small amounts in the aggregate and represent only a small percentage of the number it is expected will be taken before the county fathers for consideration.

Appleton is expected to file one soon requesting approximately $20,000 to cover part of construction costs on Wisconsin-ave over which state trunk highway 15 will be re-routed as soon as the pavement is completed.

"CASCARETS" FOR COSTIVE BOWELS, HEADACHE, COLDS

To-night! Clean your bowels and stop headache, colds, sour stomach

Get a 10-cent box now. Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

This Is The Time Of The Year For Real Fishing

BY B. A. CLAFLEN

While most sportsmen are out with the gun nowadays there are many dyed-in-the-wool fishermen who follow their favorite pastime until the waters freeze over, and then go after the funny denizens through the ice, although this form of sport is limited so far as waters are concerned.

Right now is really the best time of the year in many ways for bass, pike, muskies and pickerel. The specimens you get, and they come with less effort on your part than they do when the torrid sun beats down on your head in mid-summer, are not only gamier, but of far better flavor.

As the cool weather of fall comes on their natural food becomes scarcer. The smaller species of fish life, upon which the game fishes feed, prefer warmer water and take to the shallows. And that is why you see the bass active along shore at this time of the year. They do not, however, always succeed in getting their fill, for their little victims find a safe harbor in water too shallow for their ravenous pursuers.

For the reason of this scarcity of natural food then, the fisherman gets best results with the artificial lures. And, for that matter, the big pike, although they do not run up into the shallows as the bass do, are just as keen for a glittering lure that passes their lurking place, as are the bass.

To take them most successfully at this time of the season, a lure having plenty of red, white and nickel is best. The waters are darker, for one thing, and a bright colored lure naturally shows up to better advantage. Experience, alone, can tell you what lure is most effective. Just because a certain lure is extensively advertised, does not mean that the fish will be any more interested in that lure.

We recently had some fine sport with the big Northern Pike in the Peshigo River at Caudron Falls. There are some big ones in that river and, at this time of the year, they are very accommodating. We went up well prepared so far as lures are concerned. We took several of our largest specimens on a South Bend Fish-oreno—the one with the nickel and red head and white body. This lure is most effective in deep water for it is a deep traveler. Its action, so far as those big pike were concerned, was simply irresistible. And they took it with a rush that carried with it a real thrill.

This is a nice trip for this time of the year. Take highway 57 to Crivitz and make inquiries there of Mel Gould at his garage before attempting to find your own way further. It may save you a deal of trouble for the roads are many and winding.

SECRETARY DISCUSSES "Y" WORK IN CHINA

Work of an American Y. M. C. A. secretary in successfully conducting an association building in China is related in a letter received by George F. Werner, general secretary of the local association, from T. M. Elliot, in charge of the association at Amoy, Fukien, China. Mr. Elliot and Mr. Werner worked together several years ago in the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A., where the local man instructed the Chinese secretary in association work.

The Amoy building is a new association, built after a campaign was conducted in which all funds were received from Chinese contributors. The building is in use the entire year, with no sign of a "slack season." Classes included an English phonetic class of 80 men and women, mostly teachers; a Mandarin group composed of 104 men and women, all primary school teachers; and a summer school for Chinese, with an enrollment of 50. The Mandarin class lasts six weeks of two hours daily. Beside this there is the regular day and night school and the regular association work. From Feb. 15, when the showers were installed until the end of the month, 148 people used the five baths. In March, 333 used the showers; in April, 371; in May, 576; in June, 1458; in July, 1406 and in August, 1476.

One day in March when a count was taken 1,179 men entered the building and since then the number has increased. Mr. Elliot said. Two billiard tables have been in use eight hours of twenty-four since the middle of last December.

BRITISH AIR EXPERTS FAVOR DIESEL ENGINE

London—British aircraft engineers are looking toward the use of crude-oil engines of the Diesel high compression, non-ignition type in airplanes of the future.

This would be one of the biggest steps made in the progress of aviation, they say, because it would bring with it simplicity of operation, economy, safety and more room allowance for other than fuel space.

With the heavy oil engine comes the need for less fuel on long flights, and the longer the flight, the greater economy in weight and space.

The great disadvantage at present is the weight of such an engine. The present aircraft gasoline engine weighs about two pounds for each horsepower it delivers. The best reduction in weight of the Diesel type of engine has been made by the recent "Attendu" motor, which weighs four pounds to each horsepower. The lower fuel weight needed by this engine couldn't make up for the heavier weight. But engineers see the possibility of reducing the engine weight to three pounds per horsepower, when the Diesel would become a worthy competitor of the gasoline motor. For the extra pound per horsepower on the engine would be more than made up by the lower fuel weight and volume, especially for long distances.

Weight of the Diesel could possibly be reduced, however, by the development of the two-stroke-cycle engine, in which every push of the piston is a pressure stroke and there is half the effort required of the present four-cycle type.

Lower fire hazard of the heavy oil engine is another important argument for its use in aviation.

A statue of Gustav III, the first monarch to recognize the United States as an independent nation was unveiled recently at Gothenburg, Sweden.

Former Suffering Seems Like A Dream To This Appleton Lady

Amazing recovery of Mrs. Werner due entirely to Dreco she declares.

Never a day passes now but what some person tells the Dreco Expert at Schilnitz Bros. Drug Store of the wonderful good Dreco has done them. Persons suffering from stomach disorders, indigestion, gastritis, deranged kidneys, sluggish liver, blood impurities, rheumatism, catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach, shattered nerves, poor appetite, and the many other symptoms brought on by the vital organs being weakened, come forward stating that Dreco has put new life and energy into their rundown system.

Read how it helped Mrs. Hulda Werner, the well-known matron living at 427 So. River-St., this city. She says:

"For years I suffered agonies from stomach troubles. Gas bloated out my stomach and brought on terrible pains and everything I ate turned sour. I was always belching up sour liquids. I couldn't eat even the lightest foods without suffering with indigestion. I had severe pains in my back, was very nervous and constipated and, in fact, was practically an invalid, hardly able to do my own housework."

"I tried most everything before Dreco came to town, but could not get a minute's relief. Dreco, however, proved just what I needed and altho it sounds impossible it made me almost entirely well in three short weeks. Now I can eat anything without suffering with my stomach. My bowels are now as regular as the clock, the pains in my back have been relieved, my nerves have been quieted and I feel fine in everyway. I eat, sleep and work like another woman and I give full credit to Dreco."

Mr. Marr Baker, the well-known expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schilnitz Bros. downtown drug store is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him.

Notice of Referendum Election on Proposed Constitutional Amendments

TO THE ELECTORS OF OUTAGAMIE COUNTY:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That at the time of holding the regular General Election to be held in the County of Outagamie, on the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which the questions submitted to a vote in the sample ballot below are to be voted upon,

Official Referendum Ballot

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates to that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

(c) A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the party column, or he may vote for the candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the name of each candidate for elector for whom he wishes to vote. If a voter does not wish to vote for any one or more candidates for presidential electors in the group, he may erase the name of such candidate or candidates and may write in the space provided therefor, the name or names of the persons for whom he desires to vote, and the cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) at the head of the party column shall count as a vote for each of the candidates in such column. If a voter does not wish to vote for any candidates for president or vice presidential electors to a number equal to the number of electors to be elected, in the appropriate spaces in the blank column at the right of the ballot.

(d) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

(e) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

(h) The following is a facsimile of the official ballot:

If you desire to vote for any question, make a cross (X) or other mark in the square after the word "yes," underneath such question; if you desire to vote against any question, make a cross (X) or other mark in the square after the word "no," underneath such question.

Shall amendment to the constitution creating sec. 12 of art. XIII, providing for the recall of elective state, county, congressional, judicial and legislative officers by direct vote of the electors, be adopted?

HUBBY ISN'T SO KEEN ABOUT THE MUCH BEBUTTONED DRESS

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

WHERE are we going? Scouty said, and Coppy answered, "Straight ahead. I guess we're simply going where the horse decides to run. But, what's the difference anyway. We haven't got a thing to say about this trip, so let's just go, and have a heap of fun."

The horse, it seemed, enjoyed the ride, and swayed himself from side to side, which tossed the little Tinymites about in the air. They'd leave the horse's back and then come bobbing down kersmack again. Perhaps it jarred them up a bit, but no one seemed to care.

They traveled through a forest dense and then old dobbin jumped a fence, and started through a farmer's field where corn was growing high. Then Carpy said, "Ah, here's a treat," and, gee, he almost lost his seat in reaching for a cob of corn as they went sailing by.

Now, just ahead there stood a farm, which caused the Tinies some alarm. Said Scouty, "If we're taken there, they'll chase us all away." "Oh, no they won't," snapped Ukey. "We can be as quiet as can be. If anybody finds us we will hide up in the hay."

In just about ten minutes more they stopped outside the old barn door. "Let's not stay on the horse's back," said Carpy. "What's the use. No doubt he's tired from running fast, and now that he's at home at last, let's all jump down and look around and see what's running loose."

And thus they ended that day's ride. "Here comes somebody," Scouty cried. And as the horse went in the barn, they followed at his heels. They scampered left and they scampered right and soon they all were out of sight. They knew that there was danger, by the sound of wagon wheels.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

BY ANNE AUSTIN
"You do look adorable in that apron," Bob Hathaway looked at Faith with quizzical, rather shy blue eyes. "What are those thingamajigs on it?"

Faith glanced down at her tall, splendid figure in its dainty, unbleached muslin apron, and smiled with a shyness that more than matched his own. "Applied morning glories," she told him. "Scraps of Joy's school dresses, put on with a buttonhole stitch. This piping around the edges is the last earthly reminder of the first dress I ever made for Cherry. She was eleven and I was thirteen. She looked too adorable for words in it—a coral pink chambray with white pique Peter Pan collar and cuffs."

"How terribly busy you have been all of your short life," Bob Hathaway reflected, as he allowed himself to be swathed in a less decorative apron of blue and white checked gingham. "It's always been—Cherry first, hasn't it?"

"Yes, life has been easy for Cherry, because of her beauty and her charm. She's like Fourth of July fireworks—easy to set off, exciting, beautiful, thrilling."

"And dangerous," Bob Hathaway finished her sentence rather grimly. "I wonder if you realize what this 'Cherry first' program has done for you? It's suppressed all your natural gaiety, given you—I hate the phrase, but there doesn't seem to be any other—an inferiority complex. Away from Cherry, you bloom with a shy radiance; with her, you become almost dull—flattened out, dim. She does it, deliberately: I've watched her. She snuffs your steady, sweet light out as if it were a candle no longer needed, then—as you say—she stages her own fireworks exhibition, and no one remembers the dim, sweet altar candle that was Faith."

"Don't," Faith choked, reaching blindly for a stack of soiled plates. "Oh, I've broken a plate. It's all your fault. No, don't bother, it doesn't matter, really. Cherry would be glad if I broke the whole set. She loathes it." She dropped the broken halves of the thick, green-wined plate into the waste basket and went back to her dishpan.

"I won't don't," Bob smiled at her. "What I was saying about Cherry's effect on you—and all that Cherry stands for in your home—was on the debit side of the ledger. On the credit side, you have gained more than you have lost. Do you know, Faith, I believe you're the only thoroughly unselfish and womanly girl in this whole flapper-mad town? A born mother and a born-wife," his voice dropped the last word softly. "You've mothered this whole ungrateful brood, but it hasn't been wasted—on you."

"But I don't want to be just a womanly girl, that people respect and don't admire—as they admire Cherry." She looked up at him with unvelled envy-tortured eyes. "I want to live like I'm young, Bob, not just form a respectable, wholesome background for Cherry—I want to work and meet people and develop my personality—away from Cherry and Mother and Dad—the just Faith Lane for once in my life."

"Oh, I love them all, but I want to have a real girlhood before I turn into an acid-tongued, good-hearted old maid, like my Aunt Hattie. I suppose I sound ridiculous and that I'm spoiling your nice picture of me."

"No, you're not. I don't blame you a bit. You'd not be human if you didn't want your funings as a girl. But I rather thought that with George Pruitt rushing you, with honorable intentions written all over his good, old-ugly mug, and with me—trying to get a date in edgewise, that you were coming into your own as a popular young lady. How many cavaliers do you want, you siren?" he ended jocularly.

"Oh—George?" she laughed tremulously and turned back to her work. "He's surrendered to Cherry; at last. Didn't you notice them at dinner tonight?"

"Grandstand play," Bob Hathaway waved his dish towel with a dismissing gesture. "Trying to make you jealous. I really didn't believe you'd fall for it so easily. But if it were true, would you care—much?"

"A little," Faith smiled up at him with a rare touch of coquetry. "Hurt vanity, you know. But after that, I'd be glad because—oh, Bob, you've got to know soon, and I might as well be the one to tell you. Cherry's engaged to your uncle, Mr. Cluny."

"To Uncle Ralph? Whew!" Bob Hathaway's face sobered instantly; as his lips puckered in an incredulous whistle. "The little devil! And the poor old ass! Are you serious, Faith—or is she?"

"That's what the wall papering's all about," Faith nodded. "He's coming Friday evening to ask Dad for her hand. Rather charming of him, but—oh, Bob, I'd rather see Cherry dead than married to an old-man for his money."

"You wouldn't, really," Bob reproved her gently. "That's just one of the things we say so easily, and don't mean. But of course it's terrible. If you think it would do any good for me to tell Uncle Ralph a few unvarnished truths about himself—and Cherry—I'll do it."

"And get yourself left out of his will?" demanded Faith, indignantly. "No, don't say a word to him. We'll manage somehow."

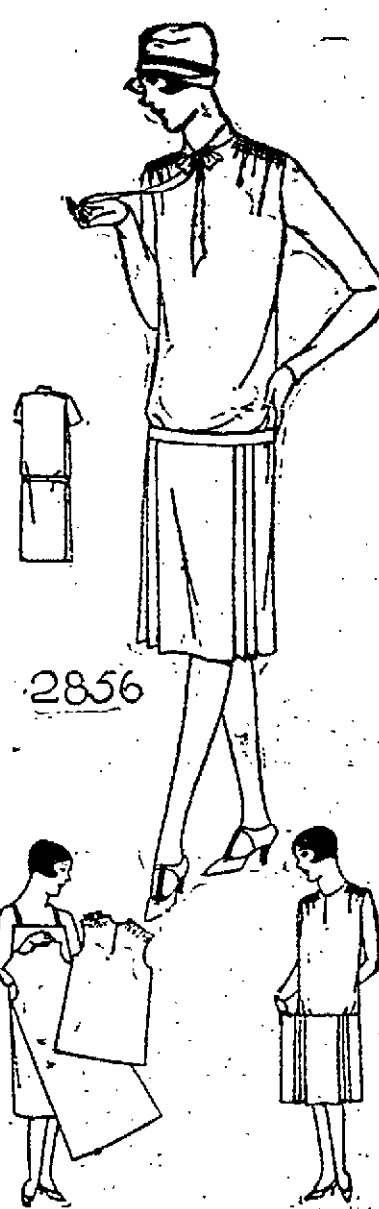

"That's appreciable about his will," Bob grinned at her. "He's got two grown children—a son and a daughter—and two grandchildren, who'll raise merry hell about a flapper step-mother. But I don't believe for a minute she's serious. I understand now why she's making this last minute assault upon George's heart. If she can land George Pruitt, she'll ditch Uncle Ralph without a qualm. Nice girl—Cherry."

"Don't make me hate you, Bob, Faith commanded sharply. "Cherry isn't an angel but I love her with all my heart, and I'm going to save her if there is any way in God's world to do it."

"With all your heart, dear?" he stepped close to the flushed, angry girl, and laid his hands upon her shoulders.

"Just what I expected! Oh, that deadly kitchen apron! Cherry's voice sang out tauntfully from the doorway. "Come look, George! Isn't she touching? Yes, sir, that's my baby!" she began to sing in a high-mocking

ONE WAY OUT

Frankness And Independence Offer Safety To Models; Modesty Minus

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK—A fashion model in New York City has no modesty, but in its place she has developed a frankness and ability to look out for herself which makes modesty seem quite out of date.

I know. For two weeks I worked as a model in this city where legs are legs and limbs grow only "in trees."

The job as a fashion model in a wholesale house is easy to get if you're the right size. Classified ad columns of newspapers are filled with requests for models at seasonal times of the year.

"Models Wanted: Attractive young ladies, size 16 for first class dress house. Must be 5 feet 8 inches tall. Salary $45."

This ad appealed to me and I set out for West 37th street and Seventh avenue, the heart of the wholesale clothing district, one block west of Broadway.

THE BIG PARADE

It was 9 a. m. Already men were lined along the curbstone to watch the models go by. This is the morning and evening pastime of those who work in this section. They don't attempt to make dates, they are simply there to get an "eyeful."

The models like this attention. With a broad, "high hat" expression they swing along unconcerned, playing to the sidewalk audience by pretending to be completely unconscious of it. Tall, creamy-skinned girls, models from the several hundred wholesale houses.

"Did you advertise for a model?" I asked stepping from the elevator abruptly into a rose-lighted reception room on the eleventh floor of a West 37th street building.

A suave, sleek man with "tape-measuring eyes" looked me over. His eyes covered me inch by inch. He touched my shoulders and turned me around.

THE AUCTION BLOCK

I felt like a slave on the auction block. My self-confidence froze into embarrassment. Yet he surveyed me as impersonally as a cattle dealer would look at a cow.

I passed inspection and was led into a dressing room. Other models in scant silk slips, backs bare to the waste, were making up before long mirrors.

A white-capped colored maid was arranging dresses on the rack. A "stock boy" brought in an armful and hung them up. Some of the girls were smoking. The showroom was beginning to fill with buyers.

I modeled the dress for the man with the restless eyes. Walking languidly toward him, I tried to drag my toes with the gliding motion I had seen professionals use. I pivoted with arms slightly extended and moved slowly away, one hand resting on my hip.

"You'll do," he told me. The man was Harry, whom I later learned was noted for his choice of new models. Everyone is known by his first name.

Models are "Mary" or "Helen" or "Yvonne"—never Miss So-and-So.

GETTING DOWN TO FIGURES
The typical model, size 16 weighs approximately 125 pounds. The "five feet eight inches" in the advertisement means heels included. Her other proportions average: bust 32, waist 27 inches 36, calf 12 and ankles 8. Her hair is either in a loose loop at the nape of her neck or shingled extremely. Her cheeks are usually pale, without rouge, and the bright red lipstick which shapes her lips gives her a foreign, chic appearance.

"You're going to like it, here," whispered a cooing masculine voice in my ear.

It was Harry, his face so close that it blurred. So this, thought I, is the first of the romance and temptations of a model's life.

BREAKFAST—Baked pears, cereal, thin cream, scrambled eggs with bacon, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Scalloped rice and mushrooms, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, graham bread, baked apple with date and nut meringue, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled sirloin steak, baked sweet potatoes, creamed onions, celery and apple salad, eye brand, orange cream pudding, milk, coffee.

Whether we gather mushrooms ourselves or purchase them from the market at a reasonable price we always regard them as a luxury and delicacy. Their distinctive flavor greatly enhances a dish which is otherwise bland and uninteresting. The combination dish in the luncheon menu is an example of such a concoction.

SCALLOPED RICE AND MUSHROOMS

One-half pound mushrooms; 5 tablespoons butter, 2 1-2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1-2 cup rice.

Wash rice through several waters and let stand in cold water to cover for one hour. Drain and add slowly to 2 quarts of rapidly boiling water. The boiling should not stop while adding the rice. Boil hard for 20 minutes. Do not try to cover the sauce pan. Pour into a colander and pour several quarts of boiling water through the rice. Then rinse with cold water and drain. Peel mushrooms, break in small pieces, and

ORDERLINESS REVEALS CHARACTER

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THERE is no surer key to character than orderliness. Show me a person's room and personal belongings, and I can tell you something of his personality.

Orderliness may, of course, be bought and paid for, but in the average house it is mother's back that bends for every bit of carelessness usually. It each member of the family sees to it that his own belongings are kept in place, it takes an infinitesimal fraction of his time and makes housekeeping a far less burdensome thing.

Once I visited in a home where the bought-and-paid-for variety of orderliness prevailed. The house was exquisite and in wonderful taste. Trained servants kept it in a state of perpetual perfection—yet not one person in the entire family made the slightest pretense of being orderly.

The two sons shook their cigarette ashes any place it suited them to do so, crumpled papers and fluted cups off chocolate littered the floor by the time bedtime came. Indeed, the living room was littered unbelievably—everything thrown around, everything out of place.

Those boys now are married; they are on modest salaries, they are without their father's means, and keep no servants. I can guess how their wives must be picking up after them.

A woman had two girls for house guests. Her home in the environs of Philadelphia is one of the country show places. She and her husband are collectors of unusual furniture, bric-a-brac and rugs. The room she gave the guests was a museum of treasures. She said the rug was almost ruined with the powder and cosmetics on it. She said also that half the things in the room were nearly ruined with powder.

It is to be hoped the visitors will always be fortunate enough to have bought-and-paid-for orderliness. But, if they don't you may well guess the kind of housekeepers they will be.

USE FEATHERS

Chiffon evening frocks are a bit more sophisticated than they were last season, and often are given an unusual effect by the use of ostrich feathers shaded from light to dark in the color of the frock.

TWO COATS

This season's frock often has two coats, one a sleeveless affair of velvet or kasha, and an outside one of fur or heavy wool material.

THREE BEST

At the latest inventory, the three most important colors are said to be green, rust and eggplant.

TWO IN ONE

Reversible coats this season are fur on one side and tweed or kasha on the other.

FUR FLOWERS

Flowers of fur are new this season and will probably be very popular on fur coats. They are made of short

USE BRILLIANTS

Chiffon dance frocks are popularly embroidered with rhinestones or encrusted with sequins.

EMBROIDERED SCARFS

Many of the new scarfs are of wool and they are embroidered in wools in pleasant designs.

Tentative plans were announced at the meeting for the state and grand aerie convention to be held jointly in Milwaukee in August, 1927. Old age pension reports were given by Judge Al Schmidt of Manitowoc and Charles A. Dittman of LaCrosse. Russell B. Williamson, architect, who designed plans for the million dollar club house for Eagles at Milwaukee, gave a detailed description of the building. The first affair to be given in the new clubhouse will be an indoor circus on Dec. 15, 16 and 17 to which all Eagle aeries in Wisconsin will be invited.

Congressman Florian Lausche of Oshkosh was initiated by state officers at the district meeting Sunday afternoon. The Oshkosh aerie is making preparations to initiate a large armistice class the latter part of November.

A resolution which will be introduced at the next session of the state legislature was unanimously adopted at the meeting. The resolution stated that one day of each year be set aside in all schools when the children would be required to write an essay on the agricultural and industrial advantages in the state of Wisconsin.

Among the grand and state officers present at the meeting Sunday afternoon were: Harry R. McLogan, of Milwaukee, grand aerie trustee and organizer; John A. Dresden, Green Bay, deputy organizer; John A. Thomas, Marshfield, deputy auditor; Judge Albert Schmidt, Manitowoc, member of the grand aerie old pension committee; John E. Scheller, Neenah, junior past state president; Paul R. Hervig, Milwaukee, state president; Murt Malone, Oshkosh, state vice president; Frank Roach, Janesville, state secretary; Charles Schrimpf, Appleton, state treasurer; A. J. Lautenbach, Plymouth, state chaplain.

Local Eagles who attended the meeting were: Haterbecker, James, Sorenson, Andrew Schintz, Frank Huntz, Elmer Koerner, Nels Gallipeau, C. G. Jungnick, John S. Jansen, Leo F. Schwahn, John Miller, Frank Diener, Charles Schrimpf.

Preparations are being made by the local aerie for a program to be given Wednesday night. Paul Herwig, state president, will probably be present at the meeting.

SPORTS COUNCIL TO HAVE SUPPER

Sports council of the Appleton Womens club will have supper in the living room of the clubhouse at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. The regular monthly meeting will follow and will be presided at by Miss Lorene Sorenson, president of the group.

Have stopped old hygienic methods to assure real immaculacy. NEW way gives true protection—discards like tissue

FEW modern women but employ a new and different way in hygiene. A way that supplants the old-time "sanitary pad" with true protection.

Wear filmy frocks and light things . . . any time. Dance, motor for hours without doubt or fear.

It is called "KOTEX" . . . five times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly deodorizes . . . thus ending ALL fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." Costs only a few cents. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

Three New Activities Get Underway At Womens Club

Three new activities in the year's program will be started at the Appleton Womens club this week when the social dancing class will meet at 7 o'clock Wednesday at the playhouse, the Wednesday league of the club will bowl at the Y. M. C. A., alleys at 7 o'clock in the evening, and open house will be held from 4 to 7 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the club. The major bowling league will meet at the Arcade alleys at 7 o'clock Monday, and at the same hour the girls interested in learning to play the ukulele will meet at the club. Other meetings Monday will be the vocational school dramatic club rehearsal in the assembly hall of the school at 7:30, a bridge party in the second floor club rooms, and the Monday night club at 7:30 in the playhouse.

Class and group meetings for Tuesday evening will include the monthly meeting and supper of sports council at 6 o'clock in the living room of the club, dramatic workshop rehearsal of "The Wonder Hat" at 7 o'clock in the playhouse, arts and crafts class at 7 o'clock, and gymnastics class at 7:15 in the high school gymnasium.

The dramatic workshop will hold another rehearsal of the play, "Who Could Not Go," at 6:30 Wednesday evening in the playhouse. Swimming classes will be held in the Y. M. C. A. pool under the direction of Miss Agnes Vanneman, physical director, from 10:30 in the morning to 9:15 at night. K. W. Y. W. club will have supper at 6 o'clock in the living room, and the weekly bridge class will meet at 7:15 in the living room.

Three meetings will be held at the club on Thursday, including the board of directors at 8 o'clock in the afternoon, dramatic workshop rehearsal of "The Trysting Place," at 6:30 in the evening at the playhouse, and basketball practice at the high school gymnasium at 7:15 that night.

The Womens club cottage on Lake Winnebago will be used Friday night by the Shamrock troop of girl scouts. Supper will be served to the Eta Beta Pi supper club at 5:30 in the living room and the dramatic workshop costume committee will meet at 7 o'clock in the evening. The monthly chess clinic will start at 1:30 on Saturday under the direction of Dr. A. D. Boyd of Riverview sanitarium, Kaukauna.

Club Plans Programs For General Meet

Varied programs have been planned for the general meetings of the Appleton Womens club this year, according to the arrangements made by the committee in charge at a meeting Friday afternoon.

Mrs. M. A. Wertheimer of Kaukauna, will entertain with several selections of poems Nov. 11, and an exchange program with the Kaukauna Womens club probably will be given at the January meeting. The Dramatic Workshop will present a play in December, but its title has not been announced.

Sliding through Europe will be the subject of a lecture by Mrs. Anita Willets Burnham of Chicago in February. Mrs. Burnham is an artist and traveler who talked at the club two years ago on a trip around the world. The lecture will be illustrated with stereoscopic views, and an exhibit of the artist's work will be made after the address.

Mrs. Loeb Hamburger of Chicago, formerly Miss Louise Loeb of Appleton, will talk on Peace at the March meeting, and E. B. Rosenberry of Madison, wife of Judge Rosenberry, will speak in April.

The annual meeting of the club will be held in May, and the program will be arranged later in the year. Mrs. E. H. Krug is chairman of the program committee.

CARD PARTIES

Thirty-six tables were in play at the open card party given by Trades and Labor council Sunday in Trades and Labor hall. Prizes at schafkopf were won by Mrs. John Lueders and John Lueders and at skat by Conrad Verbrick, George Kirschenlore and H. W. Rehlander.

Mrs. Joseph Schreiter won the grand prize at schafkopf and Mrs. A. G. Koch the grand prize at bridge at the last of the series of card parties given by the Missionary society of St. Mary church Friday afternoon in Columbia hall. Prizes at schafkopf were won by Mrs. John Butler and Mrs. Alex Migon and at bridge by Mrs. Reinhard Wenzel. The first of another series of card parties will be given next Friday afternoon in Columbia hall. Mrs. John Butler is chairman of the committee in charge.

New Orleans Black Devils, Little Chute, Wed.

Members of the Novel-History club will be entertained at a dinner at 6:30 Monday evening at the home of Mrs. James Wagg, 902 E. College-ave. After the dinner, the usual program will be given. Mrs. A. G. Meating will read The History of Fort Winnebago.

Smartest of Fall Fabrics

$2.25 and $4.50 Yard

The Sheen of Moire Is Abroad in The Land

Moire, reminiscent of our grandmother's Sunday dress with its pleating and shirring, its bustle and buckram! Moire, its wave-like sheen alike lovely by day or evening. It lends itself admirably to the present mode of tunic, pleats, boleros, requiring little trimming because of its rich surface finish. Especially lovely in warm red, rich browns and black.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSTWO RIVERS GAME
EASY VICTORY FOR
PEP KAUKAUNA TEAM

Smith Gets More Experience for His Game With Appleton on Nov. 11

Kaukauna—"Now that's over, let's get Appleton," will be the cry all over the city until the Appleton-Kaukauna football game is a matter of history. Kaukauna walloped Two Rivers Saturday. When the smoke of battle had cleared away Kaukauna had a 27 to 0 verdict over Two Rivers. Kaukauna had a great aerial game and used it. Another improvement about the local squad was the defense against the attack. Only in the first couple of minutes of play did Two Rivers successfully execute passes. Not only did the "Galloping Ghosts" break up the Purple and Gold's passing game, but they intercepted several, making big runs which were climaxed by Esler's 65-yard run for a touchdown in the third period. Kaukauna kicked off to Herring who returned the ball to Two Rivers' twenty yard line. The Purple and Gold opened up with a passing attack and on the next two plays they made ten yards and first down. Then they tried a series of plunges but couldn't make more than three yards. Herring kicked to Esler who ran it back to the Orange and Black 20 yard line after Two Rivers received a five yard penalty for being off side. Kaukauna worked the ball to the thirty five yard line on straight football. Two Rivers held and Macrorie kicked to Two Rivers' ten yard line. Several plunges failed and Herring kicked to Esler on the fifty yard line. Esler ran back thirty yards and then skirted right end for five more. Verbeten hit center for 6 and Esler made two more around left end. Macrorie made one on an off tackle plunge. Kaukauna was on Two Rivers' ten yard line and Esler kicked to M. Miller who was behind the goal line for the Galloping Ghosts' first touchdown. Macrorie kicked goal. Kaukauna kicked to Siebert and Two Rivers tried hitting the line. A pass to Arpin was intercepted by Verbeten who ran 25 yards to make the touchdown. Macrorie kicked goal and the score was 14 to 0. The first six minutes of play, Kaukauna clearly outclassed Two Rivers in every phase of the game this period. The remainder of this quarter was devoted to an exchange of punts and a series of line plunges. Kaukauna had the ball on its own 25 yard line in the second period opened. Verbeten made four off left tackle in two plays and made ten on a pass from Macrorie. Esler hit left for four and a few more plunges put the ball on Two Rivers' eight yard line. Esler went through left tackle for the third touchdown. Macrorie made the kick and the score was 21 to 0. The third quarter of the period was played in Two Rivers' territory but Kaukauna could not score again. The locals received a fifteen yard penalty for tackling a man without the ball before his team mate had received it. Herring was playing a big game for Two Rivers and was the only consistent gainer. "Bullets" Verbeten showed up well for Kaukauna as did Macrorie, Esler, M. Miller and Captain Noie. The half ended 21 to 0. W. Miller scooped up a fumble just before the half ended.

Two Rivers kicked to Kemp on his twenty-five yard line. Two Rivers held and Macrorie kicked to Herring. Two Rivers tried four plunges and couldn't make first down and it was the Kawmen's ball on their own forty-five yard line. Macrorie passed to Verbeten for fifteen. Macrorie made another pass to Esler for 15 yards. Plunges failed and two more passes were incomplete. Two Rivers took the ball on its own twenty yard line when Macrorie tried a drop kick. Herring kicked to Kemp. Both battled on even terms in the center of the field. Macrorie finally kicking to Siebert on the Two Rivers' forty-five yard line. Esler intercepted a pass on Kaukauna's forty yard line and ran sixty yards for a touchdown. Macrorie kicked goal after the officials stopped wrangling about whether Esler was off side.

The quarter opened with Two Rivers having the ball on its 41 yard line. Both teams battled more or less even in this quarter with the Purple and Gold having the edge toward the final minutes when the Orange and Black line didn't hold and Kaukauna lost thirty-one yards on two attempts to pass. The remainder of the quarter was a struggle between the Purple and Gold. Verbeten 1. Points after touchdown—Macrorie, three. Wright, Wisconsin, referee; Bray, Wisconsin, umpire; Reece, Oshkosh Normal, head linesman.

THREE TEAMS BATTLE LEAGUE FIRST PLACE

Kaukauna—The Maytag Washers met the Andrews Oil bowling team in the feature game of this week's Kaukauna Business Men's Bowling league matches to be rolled on Hilgenberg's alleys Wednesday evening. NEW EASY WASHER

THE most remarkable washing machine ever invented is the new Easy. It washes one tubful of clothes—10 pounds—and at the same time dries another tubful. No wringing. No wet clothes to handle piece by piece. No water to lift or carry. Not a drop of water wasted. When you are all through washing the Easy empties itself. The secret is in the Easy's small tub that dries the clothes. There has never been anything like it before in washing clothes. Don't wait a minute. Come in now and see this wonderful time and labor saver. Or better yet, let us show you the Easy by doing your week's washing free—in your own home. No cost or obligation. Phone today.

CHICAGO RIVER ONE THAT FLOWS UPHILL

Result of Engineering Feat of Man to Avoid Pollution from Sewage

Chicago—(AP)—Chicago has the only known river in captivity that flows uphill. It is named after the city. Instead of flowing into Lake Michigan, as a normal river should, the lake flows into the river.

This is not a phenomenon of nature but an engineering feat of man. The river is tapped by a drainage canal, which in turn connects with the Illinois river and eventually with the Mississippi river.

Engineers turned the river backwards so that Chicago's sewage would not pollute the lake. As a river it probably has caused more grief and causing than any other. Chicagoans every once in a while wonder what should be done with it.

Some would like to bridge it over with a wide boulevard; others want to fill it up, while another group, rallying at the government which maintains that it is navigable and must be kept free for traffic, want to ban it as a carrier and put in fixed bridges.

After moving west a mile, the river divides, one branch meandering north and the other south, so that Chicago's loop virtually is an island. Proponents of the boulevard idea hold that the covering of the stream would relieve traffic and give the downtown area a large breathing space.

All bridges across the river, and there are scores of them, are movable because every once in a while a flat boat pulls through carrying a lone freight car or a shipment of some kind moves inward, halting street traffic as one bridge after another is lifted.

Those who wish to see fixed bridges installed are petitioning the government to rule that the stream no longer is navigable. But the war department still holds that the river must be kept open to ship traffic.

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER RECOVERS AT HOSPITAL

Motorcycle Patrolman Alfred Dunn, on sick leave at St. Elizabeth hospital, was reported as resting well Monday morning. The officer is recovering after an attack of blood poisoning traceable to an accident Mr. Dunn had several weeks ago. At the time the injury was not considered serious but septic poisoning set in last week.

STAGE And SCREEN

La Boheme! The gay abandon of artists and poets in the Latin Quarter; the effervescence of true Parisians!

The ardent love of a poet whose soul breathes romance—a maiden whose every thought is a poem—a flower of France.

Hope—grief—despair—and a faith that passeth understanding! "La Boheme," a story that has "thundered down" the ages—that has charmed millions, has come to the screen—a masterpiece, as always, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first starring vehicle for the fair Lillian Gish, now playing at the Elite Theatre, is a milestone in the art of the screen drama.

Lillian Gish has given the world "Romola," "The White Sister," and other great roles—but she literally is Mimi, waif of the art quarter, wastrel ideal of a poet's heart, whose last breath is a vow of undying love. She is inspiration and happiness—and untold woe. She is the embodiment of the tragedy of womanhood.

The famous story was adapted from the Henri Murger novel, the original romance, rather than from the opera, which only used an episode in it—and the result is a story of dramatic power that those who know the opera would never suspect. It grips the audience with its mastery of human emotions, but never for an instant does it lose that evanescent spell of entertainment.

"THE CLINGING VINE" Tom Moore, the noted young screen player with an engaging personality and contagious Irish grin, was chosen to play the featured role opposite Lillian Gish in "The Clinging Vine," her new star vehicle. It will be shown at the Fischers Appleton Theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week. Robert Edson also is featured in the cast.

Moore, who made a big success in "The Song and Dance Man," recently returned from an extended trip to Europe, and appeared in a leading role with Pola Negri in "Good And Naughty." In "The Clinging Vine," in which he worked under the direction of Paul Sloane, he portrays the role of a lovable young dreamer, with no sense of business, while Miss Gish's characterization is that of an efficient, mannish business executive, who simulates a "clinging vine" for a particular purpose.

Appearing with Tom Moore and Robert Edson in support of Miss Joy are Saltz Edwards, Toby Claude and Dell Henderson. The feature was adapted from the musical comedy by Zidek, Iqbal, and Mr. STACINIA. Zidek, Iqbal, and Mr. STACINIA, which ran for many months in New York and was later shown in the principal cities of the country.

Marajah The Mystic who is amazing capacity crowds with his mysticism will appear all this week.

PERCY MARKS' NOVEL OF COLLEGE LIFE GREAT PICTURE You can't beat the campus and surrounding points of interest of an American college for a background of a motion picture.

It has romance, excitement and action that is spurred by a youthful gaiety that is always colorful. And this is the setting provided by B. P. Schulberg in his newest Preferred Picture release, "The Plastic Age," which opened at the New Bijou today. It is a film version of the Percy Marks novel which created such a stir upon its publication a year or so ago.

The story is logical and gripping, and it has a dash that is most refreshing. Also it has Clara Bow, that enthralling little actress, whose exploits are worth while in any picture in which she appears. Donald Keith, the youth who has lately jumped into the limelight of motion picture audience favor, has a fine part in the role of Hugh Carver, the hero of the Marks novel.

Mary Alden and Henry B. Walthall have their usual fine performances in the roles of Keith's mother and father. These players are "stable" articles in a motion picture cast. They never miss fire.

prolific spot in the majors for uncovering stars.
In the American league a half dozen players were unearthed who showed unusual ability at the keystone sack. Tony Lazzeri of the New York Yankees was the outstanding rookie at the position. Charley Gehringer of Detroit looked mighty good. Hummer, who did well at short for Chicago, also played second, as did Moore. Regan of Boston is also a fine prospect.

RAIL ENGINEERS TO MEET AT MODEL CITY

Venice, Fla.—(AP)—Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will come to this their "model city" for their annual meeting, Nov. 7 to 9. Venice is owned by the B. L. L. Realty corporation, which in turn is owned by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The delegates will have an opportunity to inspect the development which includes 30,000 acres of land.
In addition to a half-million dollar hotel, several million dollars worth of residences and other buildings have been constructed in Venice by the corporation.
At the sessions, the present movement for higher wages will be discussed. No action will be taken as the meeting will not have legislative powers, but resolutions on the matter likely will be passed.

Whether or not delegates will be appointed to attend the meeting of the Great Lakes Harbors association Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 16 and 17, at Buffalo, N. Y., will be decided by directors of the chamber of commerce next Wednesday night at a regular meeting at Conway hotel. A number of other important business matters also are scheduled for transaction at that time, according to Hugh G. Corbett, general secretary.

CHAPTER I

The hatbox had fallen down exactly five times when the gray tweeds came to the rescue.

Judith was so busy soothing the enraged old lady in the seat behind, upon whose head the box already had descended twice, that she scarcely noticed the man who wordlessly stretched out a long arm and adjusted the bubble securely on the rack.

But when she turned away from the sputtering dame, she saw that her rescuer was tall and that the shoulders beneath the gray tweeds were somewhat stopped, as he bowed to her and stepped back to the aisle.

"Thank you," she smiled. "You've saved my best bonnet." "I think it will stay in place now," he said awkwardly.

Judith smiled again and looked up at him, her wide gray eyes dandling, her lips parted for another smile. But the gray tweeds straightened and retreated down the aisle, their dignity somewhat impaired by the lurching of the train.

So she closed her mouth, stared at him, and allowed an impudent wrinkle to mar the perfect contour of a normally straight nose. Humph! She patted the edges of her hair, which flamed a dark but brilliant red beneath her thin hat, brushed her shoulders and returned to her book. It was a dull gray volume, little "The Comparative System of Grading, as Used in American Universities." She apparently became interested in it, and the injured old lady behind her, after darting one or two more hostile glances at the back of her neck, finally turned her attention to the landscape.

The next station was a junction, which evidently had been accumulating college students for hours past, for when the Pendleton train drew up at the platform, an army of noisy young barbarians stormed the coaches, and Judith's car suddenly was full of bright scarves and loud labels. As the seats filled, Judith removed her coat from the vacant space beside her and laid it on the misbehaving hatbox. Immediately a mouse-colored youth slipped into the place. Judith glanced sidewise at him, without turning her head, and met his eyes in a similar maneuver. The youth laughed, and Judith, blushing faintly, smiled.

"This seat occupied?" Judith shook her head. "No," she said, demurely.

The youth pulled a ponderous pipe from a pulsing pocket and stroked it thoughtfully. Then, glancing over his shoulder, "Wonder if I could sneak a few frags before the trainman comes through. They don't enforce the no-smoke rule very much, anyhow, on these college trains."

"Not much chance against a mob like this, I guess," commented Judith. "Are all the trains like this one?" "This one's tame compared with most of 'em," he answered. "You ought to see one of the trains after a big game, when everybody's got a singin' jag. Victors celebratin' an' losers drownin' their sorrows. You a newcomer?" He inspected her more closely.

"Yes," said Judith. "I don't know anything about university life."

He stopped puffing at his pipe and regarded her in some surprise. "A freshman?"

Judith's lip curled and straightened again. "No. But I went to a girl's school, you see." If he had looked at her more closely he would have seen an amused twinkle in her eyes.

"The mouse-colored one nodded sage by 'Min-a. One of those high finished models from a female academy. Well, you've got a lot to learn."

"But I'll give you a rule of three," he added. "Keep your eyes and ears open, keep your mouth shut, and don't drink any liquor until you've had it analyzed. Follow directions, and you may live to regret what went up from the coach behind. At sound of it be straightened up and smiled faintly—rather condescending, Judith thought.

"That smoking car," he remarked indignantly, "is full of Betas and Phi Delas, and they're shooting high-powered propaganda into all our best wishes and dreams, and not a Sigma Psi on board but me."

Judith's eyes followed his as they glanced at the small pin, heavy with rubies and diamonds, on his vest.

"Probably ought to crash the gate back there," he confided, "and corner a mess of frosh for Sig Psi. But I don't feel equal to it. After three years that sort of thing kinda palls on one, y' know. But then, I suppose you don't know. Probably didn't have national fraternities where you came from. What sorority are you aiming at?"

Judith hesitated a moment. "Why, I don't know. None, probably."

His spare eyebrows went up in mild surprise and he stared at her with a new interest. "How do you get that way? Do you know what life is like for a barb in Pendleton U?" He surveyed Judith's trim chiffon ankles and the choker of stone marten that she wore against her dove-colored suit.

"Tell you what I'll do," he went on. "I'll give your name to some friends of mine—Thetas and Kappas and a Gamma Delta. It's pretty late, but they're still making dates for rush week. Tell me about yourself so I can boost your stock. Make 'em think I've known you all my life."

Then, seeing that Judith was searching for a reply, he added, "On my fair to tell you something about myself first. I'm Will Wetherell, of the Sigma Psi house. Members Scabard and Blade, former editor 'Sugar and Spice,' charter member Carlyle club and Talk club and chief high mogul of the Gerhart faction. His tips curved in a fatuous smile. "That enough recommend?"

Judith's brows knitted. "Certainly," she said, "and it's good of you to be interested. But I really think I shan't have time for sororities. Thank you just as much."

Wetherell gazed at her solemnly. Then he pursed his lips in a soundless whistle. Judith looked out the window, and Wetherell tilted his pipe again and thrust it between his teeth. A sound of shouting came from the rear coach. He rose lazily and stood looking down at her. "Guess I'll wander back and throw the fear of God into those Phi Delts," he remarked, and retreated elegantly down the aisle.

Judith sat and frowned at the landscape whizzing by. To be taken for a freshman! Well—and she smiled at the thought—the day might come, of course, when she would look upon such a mistake as a compliment rather than a blow to her sophistication. But not yet. Not while her years were so few.

Again the impudent little wrinkle chased itself across her nose. She smiled once more at the recollection of something the youth calling himself Wetherell had said, permitted a vagrant thought of her knight of the band box to flit through her head and turned once more to her book at a forbidding paragraph beginning, "The advantages of the comparative system of grading in colleges where the honor system is employed have been questioned by several leading authorities."

The riotous train, it seemed, had not yet reached the height of its riotousness. The next station produced a still larger and apparently younger crowd of students than the last. And these evidently had a "singin' jag."

They burst into the train in full chorus, jamming the aisles and flapping crazy pennants, to the annoyance of mature passengers and the obvious disgust of those older students who were staring indifferently out of the windows.

The seat beside Judith was taken by a girl who dropped into it without so much as a glance to see who was beside her and began applying lipstick with great concentration. She would not be distracted from her absorbing occupation until a cavalier of striped hatband and hunched complexion approached to hang over her.

"Great joint this school's gettin' to be," he remarked. "I hear old Timothy Brown's heading the discipline committee. If so, Lord help the student body. He's a regular old woman. Never knew the delights of wine, woman and song himself, and doesn't mean to let anybody else know 'em."

"Yeah," the girl said, still pecking at her mouth with the corner of her handkerchief and staring into a looking glass in the top of her handbag. "Timothy's pretty sour."

"You hear Eric Waters is coming down? You know—the Princeton celebrity. They say his dad's sick of spending cash on him at Princeton and has sent him down here on allowance of a hundred and fifty a month."

The girl closed her bag and licked her lips carefully. "That's tough," she said. "Is he good looking?" "Couldn't say," answered the blotchy youth. "The girls seem to think so, but I wouldn't be surprised if it was a case of money making the man. I imagine I could think most anybody was handsome if he had John D. Rockefeller's money."

The girl shrugged, and essayed a careful smile, as if she were afraid her heavily made up lips were going to crack. "I could say," she agreed. "The 'bels of Pendleton will have their work cut out for them from now on, with Eric Waters providing competition."

Their conversation drifted on. Judith had been reading one paragraph over and over while the chatter of the youthful pair invaded her left ear. She jerked angrily and concentrated on her book, and a tiny frown furrowed her brow.

The girl beside her glanced her way, and then, as if she had seen something unusual, began "talking Judith in." The blotchy youth, too, seemed to find the sight of the red-headed girl not uninteresting and permitted himself to stare and then to exchange a knowing look with his companion.

Judith, aware of their regard, shifted uncomfortably, and a slow wave of color spread over her pale cheeks. She closed her book with a snap, and the pair beside her, apparently conscious at last of their rudeness, turned their attention elsewhere. Judith heard vague snatches of their murmured talk—"majoring in English"—"made up six hours at summer school"—"hope Prof. Robby takes me in his medieval history course."

Judith was suddenly aware of a tall, gray figure moving down aisle. It was the gray tweeds, and she allowed herself this time a good look at her knight of the hat box. His face, like the rest of his figure, was lean, and his clothes, while apparently new, gave the effect of looseness. He had a small mustache. Apparently, Judith thought, he was one of those men of whom tailors despair of ever "presenting a 'natty' appearance."

He passed Judith without a glance, his tanned face a trifle averted from her, and she experienced a little feeling of amusement, not unmixed with a little pity for the man's obvious self-consciousness. As he went by, Judith's eye caught the glint of a Phi Beta Kappa pin dangling from his vest, and she nodded her head sagely. Just as she thought—an instructor, very likely. Or maybe a professor, although he did look young for it.

"Almost in," said the blotchy young man, who was still half draped over the back of the seat. He began gathering his lady's assorted baggage.

Through the window pane, Judith could see that the train was sliding through the outskirts of the town. There were squallid gray houses just beginning to glimmer in the twilight. An involuntary shudder ran through her. She saw people detach themselves from their seats and begin to assemble their grips and suitcases. A confused murmur ran through the car.

"Pendleton Station!" yelled a brakeman, banging open a door, and there was a general scramble.

Judith assembled her belongings and stood back to await her chance to get out of the mad press of noisy youth. The gray tweeds had disappeared, and she saw not a trace of the mouse-colored young woman in the coach who lacked ored Judith and then he was the only acquire to engineer her handbox. She felt suddenly lonely.

The whooping, gurgling throng filed out. Judith was one of the last passengers to step from the platform. She was instantly engulfed in a still larger and more clamorous throng, which milled about her with a confused thunder of noisy greetings. There was a strenuous backslapping on the part of the young men, and the girls greeted one another with shrill cries and kisses. For a moment she was swept by a wave of helpless consternation.

But relief came swiftly, though unexpectedly. A young giant in a loose-fitting top coat detached himself from the crowd and took swift strides toward her. A smile was playing about his lips, though Judith did not see it. Indeed, all she noticed was that the shoulders beneath the top coat seemed extraordinarily broad. A football hero, probably, was her thought.

The next moment the giant had stepped beside her and snatched her suitcase and handbox. His free arm went around her and she felt herself being carried along.

Her mouth opened to voice a protest, but she was suddenly crushed against the topcoat and staring into a pair of merry light in the green eyes. They seemed to be laughing at her. She struggled feebly and then the giant kissed her soundly on the mouth.

Warding off the mob, he half pulled, half pushed her toward the taxi stand. Judith was too dazed to speak. He opened the door of a cab, thrust her inside and then slammed it shut. "What—" Judith began, but the rude young giant had turned away. She saw him toss a bill to the driver, heard him say, "The lady will give you directions." Then he vanished in the crowd.

NOTICE OF GENERAL ELECTION

STATE OF WISCONSIN,

County of Outagamie—SS.

Office of County Clerk, October 14, 1926.

TO THE ELECTORS OF OUTAGAMIE COUNTY:

Notice is hereby given that a general election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages, and election precincts in the county of Outagamie, on the 2nd day of November, 1926, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question submitted to a vote, in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have indorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross (X) or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

(c) A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the party column, or he may vote for the candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the name of each candidate for whom he wishes to vote. If a voter does not wish to vote for any one or more candidates for presidential electors in the group, he may erase the name of such candidate or candidates, and may write in the space provided for that purpose, the names or names of the person or persons whom he desires to vote, and the cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) at the head of the party column shall count as a vote for each of the candidates in such column. If a voter does not wish to vote for any candidates for president or vice president or for any presidential electors, whose names appear upon the ballot, he may insert or write in the names of the candidates for president and vice president, and presidential electors to a number equal to the number of electors to be elected, in the appropriate spaces in the blank column at the right of the ballot.

(d) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give. (e) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memoranda to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of two election officers, in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

(h) The following is a facsimile of the official ballot:

JOHN E. HANTSCHER, County Clerk.

SAMPLE OFFICIAL BALLOT

If you desire to vote for an entire party ticket for state, congressional, legislative and county offices make a cross (X) or other mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the ballot. If you desire to vote for particular persons without regard to party, mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom you desire to vote, if it be there, or write any name you wish to vote for in the proper place.

Dated October 14, 1926, JOHN E. HANTSCHER, County Clerk

This advertisement authorized and paid for ($141.12,) by the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

You can't be Neutral!

It's "YES" or "NO". Beer or hard liquor—which?

The Volstead Act as it stands means the continued use of hard liquor. The rich man has his cocktail before dinner, his champagne at parties. College boys carry flasks. Girls and women drink. Roadhouses flourish.

But the Workingman Must Go Without His Glass of Beer

The bootleggers and the hijackers will vote "no" on question number three. They are satisfied. They want to go on selling hard liquor. They are making more money than they could ever earn at honest labor—and paying no taxes on it.

But the Convalescent Goes Without His Glass of Nourishing Beer

If you are against hard liquor, vote "yes" Tuesday. Vote for the return of beer. Beer that is not intoxicating (the normal stomach will not hold enough $2\frac{3}{4}\%$ beer to intoxicate). The Volstead Act modified to permit the sale of $2\frac{3}{4}\%$ beer means temperance.

Give the Nursing Mother Her Glass of Healthful Beer

A modification of the Volstead Act will benefit everybody in Wisconsin. It will end the business of the bootleggers and the crime associated with it. It will bring back respect for the law by making the law reasonable and worthy of respect. It will restore a whole-hearted loyalty to our government.

It Will Give the Clerk His Glass of Tonic Beer

The return of beer will put hard liquor out of style. The hip flask will go the way of hoop skirts. Boys and girls will condemn hard liquor and intoxication with all the ardor of youth.

The Mechanic Will Have His Glass of Healthful Beer

The conditions brought about by the Volstead Act are not natural conditions. They are extreme results of an extreme law.

They Take Beer from Those Who Can't Afford Champagne

The Schlitz Company urges every man and woman in Wisconsin—for their own good—to vote "yes" on Election Day on the question of modifying the Volstead Act. Of course, Schlitz wants the return of beer. That is natural—and right. For 75 years Schlitz carried on an honorable business in a well-regulated way. It proved itself a loyal American institution—it assisted the government in time of war—it always obeyed the law to the letter—it will continue to obey the law.

It is natural and right that Schlitz should favor the legalizing of a legitimate beer business and the destruction of the illicit bootlegger's business.

Schlitz has studied the question of modifying the Volstead Act from every possible angle. Schlitz believes that the return of beer will benefit everybody in Wisconsin. Whether you like beer or not—no matter who you are—it is to your interest to vote "yes." True temperance will bring about greater prosperity and greater happiness to all the people of Wisconsin.

Schlitz is certain of the outcome of this referendum because Schlitz has profound faith in the people of Wisconsin to see the right and to choose it.

Attention

State and county officers will be elected by Wisconsin voters Tuesday.

The polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening at the regular polling places, in accordance with the state law.

Interest in Outagamie county centers about the election of a sheriff and clerk of court. The defeated candidates for nomination for these offices on the Republican ticket are running on the Independent ticket, and as the vote in the primary was close, the winners probably will not be determined until the last few votes have been counted.

Otto H. Zuehlke, successful candidate for nomination for sheriff on the Republican ticket, defeated his opponent, Earl G. Schwartz, present undersheriff, by 11 votes. Schwartz was given the nomination after the first count but his lead was so small that a recount was demanded by Zuehlke. A number of errors were discovered in the first count, and the correction gave Zuehlke his narrow victory. The former announced his candidacy on the Independent ticket shortly after.

Harry A. Shannon, incumbent, defeated Earl Becher, county highway commission accountant by 364 votes for nomination for clerk of courts on the Republican ticket. This race also was in doubt until the last few precincts had been heard from. Becher announced a few days after the primary he would again become a candidate for the office on the Independent ticket.

The only other candidates opposed for nomination on the Republican ticket were Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, and John Lonsdorf, district attorney. The former defeated Anton Jansen of Little Chute and the latter won from Joseph Wilmer and E. C. Smith. The victory of both incumbents was decisive.

Although Oscar J. Schmieg won the Republican nomination for member of assembly from the First district, he lost to the Independent ticket, the man whom he defeated in the primary, Fred A. Mueller, who is now running on the Independent ticket.

Following are the candidates for the various state and county officers on the five tickets:

Democrat: Governor, Virgil H. Cady; lieutenant governor, William G. Envision; secretary of state, Albert C. Wolfe; state treasurer, Frank J. Grutza; United States senator, Thomas M. Kearney.

Prohibition: Governor, David W. Emerson; lieutenant governor, Henry H. Tubbs; secretary of state, Clara G. Miller; state treasurer, Warren J. Robinson; attorney-general, Burdett S. Hawley; United States senator, Ella Tenney Sanford.

Republican: Governor, Fred R. Zimmerman; lieutenant governor, Henry A. Huber; secretary of state, Theodore Dammann; state treasurer, Solomon Levitan; attorney-general, John W. Reynolds; United States senator, John J. Blaine, United States senator; member of congress, Ninth district, George J. Schuch; member of assembly, Second district, Oscar J. Schmieg; member of assembly, Second district, Anton M. Miller; county clerk, John E. Hantschel; county treasurer, Marie Ziegenhagen; sheriff, Otto H. Zuehlke; coroner, Herbert E. Ellsworth; clerk of circuit court, Harry A. Shannon; district attorney, John A. Lonsdorf; register of deeds, Albert G. Koch; surveyor, L. M. Schindler.

Socialist: Governor, Herman O. Kent; lieutenant governor, Peter Gilles; secretary of state, George Eggenhul; state treasurer, Ada Burrows; attorney-general, Benjamin W. Reynolds; United States senator, Leo Krzycki.

Independent: Governor, Alex Gordon; Charles B. Perry; attorney-general, David Gardner, Jr.; United States senator, Richard Koeppele, Charles D. Rosa and J. N. Titmore; member of assembly, First district, Fred A. Mueller; sheriff, Earl G. Schwartz.

Voters also will cast their ballots on three proposed constitutional amendments relating to the recall, the salary of the governor and the Volstead Act.

The questions to be submitted to the voters are:

Shall amendment to the constitution creating section 12 of article 13, providing for the recall of election state, county, congressional, judicial and legislative officers by direct vote of the electors, be adopted?

Shall amendment to section 5 of article 5 of the constitution, providing that the annual compensation of the governor shall be such sum, not less than five thousand dollars as may be fixed by law, be adopted?

Shall the congress of the United States amend the "Volstead Act" so as to authorize the manufacture and sale of beer for beverage purposes, of an alcoholic percentage of 2.75 per cent by weight, under government supervision that no beverage so purchased shall be drunk on the premises where obtained?

The polling places in the city are located as follows:

First ward: First precinct, First ward school, Franklin-st.; Second precinct, Store Building, 522 E. College-ave.

Second ward: First precinct, Armory G. Second precinct, basement city hall, S. Oneida-st.

Third ward: First precinct, Reo garage, 327 W. College-ave.; second precinct, corner Spencer and Outagamie-ave.

Fourth ward: First precinct, Maple Grove and Walter-ave.; second precinct, Fourth ward school; third precinct, First precinct, Public Service building, stock fair grounds; second precinct, corner Richmond and Washington-sts.

Fifth ward: First precinct, 229 E. Commercial-st.; second precinct, 803 N. Appleton-st.

Neighbors Scour Country For Pigs With Wanderlust

"This little pig went to market. This little pig stayed at home."

But Frank Mueller's little pigs didn't stay at home and they didn't go to market either and Frank and a score of neighbors spent several anxious hours, at least they were anxious for Frank, in a hunt for the animals.

Mr. Mueller, a town of Grand Chute farmer, attended the monthly stock fair at Appleton Saturday morning and purchased about 15 young pigs and took them home. During the afternoon he had to attend to some business away from home and he asked one of the neighbors to keep an eye on his new stock. The neighbor agreed. However, he didn't think they would actually get out and probably didn't watch as carefully as he might.

When Frank returned the pigs were gone. A hasty search of the premises and telephone calls to several of the nearby neighbors revealed no trace of them. Frank was in a quandry. What to do? What to do?

Frank organized a searching party and started a hunt for the missing pigs. It was believed by some of the searchers that perhaps a chicken thief had turned pig thief for a short time and made off with Frank's purchases. Frank didn't give up hope, however.

At last one of the searching party heard grunts in a corn field some distance from the Mueller farm. An investigation disclosed the 15 young pigs huddled in a group underneath a stack of corn stalks. Undoubtedly they had become lonesome and were searching for maternal protection of some kind and they took the first chance that was offered. Frank remarked that he repaired the hole in the pen fence before he retired.

CAR JUMPS CURB AT END OF STREET AND RUNS INTO BUILDING

Hurting the curb while driving an automobile south on N. Richmond-st. late Saturday night Louis Eisch, 1016 W. Spring-st., brought his machine to a stop at College-ave and Richmond-st but not before considerable damage had been done to the automobile and a shed belonging to the Haug Wood company had been broken. Mr. Eisch, it was stated, escaped with several cuts and bruises but was not seriously injured.

ROST PONSELLE IN LEADING ROLE AS OPERA OPENS YEAR

New York Society Also Begins Season With Opening Metropolitan Opera

New York—The jeweled and resplendent occupants of the Metropolitan Opera House will look Monday night upon the opening of another season and also upon a new combination of first night operatic stars.

Rosa Ponselle will have the leading role in "La Vestale." Spontini's opera of Imperial Rome and the Temple of Vesta. Surrounding her will be a cast including Margaret Matzenauer, Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, Giuseppe De Luca, and Edio Puro.

OPEN'S SOCIAL SEASON
Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the Metropolitan's general manager, again has varied the premiere performers. The trio of Jeritza-Gigli-Scotti, one time regulars for the premiere event, has been broken up, presumably to avoid the consequences of any artist assuming the title of "greatest."

As a large share of New York's society adopts the opening of the opera as a time to launch the winter's social season, the audience Monday night will be filled with celebrities.

PINZA NEW BASSO
Lauri-Volpi appears in the tenor part in which Edward Johnson sang last season. Pinza, new to America, has the basso role filled last year by Josefa Marcondes. He comes from the La Scala company.

Tullio Serafin again will conduct. "La Vestale" is described as popular and artistic, and therefore suitable for the first appearance. Spontini received recognition for it through the Empress Josephine of France, and the work was commended by Napoleon.

SOCIETY ON DISPLAY
The opera season never opens with a novelty, but always with a favorite work, it was explained, because the event is more of a social than an artistic affair.

Some attend the opera to hear, others to see. The music lovers arrive early and stay late. Many of the social luminaries, including diplomats, and prominent personages, arrive late and leave early. The rule is, "arrive early and see, or arrive late and be seen."

The 35 red velvet caves that form the tiers in the old brown house, contain the mightiest of those whose names appear in the social register. They are usually filled after the first act.

Temperament among the artists, to which disturbing incidents have been attributed in the past, is held in check by Mr. Gatti, who insists upon strict discipline. This, with adequate preparations for the opening, presages the usually brilliant, successful event.

Members and friends of the Y. M. C. A. received invitations Saturday to the foreign work dinner of the association which will be held at 6:30 Wednesday evening. A program, featuring a talk by Richard Williamson, national secretary of the Mexican Y. M. C. A., has been prepared. Preparations are being made for a large attendance.

Mr. Williamson has been in Mexico for the last 22 years and is well acquainted with the religious situation in that country. He recently spoke to the Y's Mens club and at a meeting of the Kaukauna Y. M. C. A. on The Religious Situation in Mexico. Ladies of the members also have been invited to hear the talk. John Trautman, chairman of the religious work committee, is in charge of the meeting.

SYMPHONY BAND IN CONCERT HERE

Victor Jena Grabel, organizer and conductor of the Chicago Symphony band which will play two concerts, matinee and night on Thursday, Nov. 4 at Fischer's Appleton theatre is termed "a bandmaster who is doing for the old brass band what Paul Whiteman has done for the old fashioned orchestra."

Many of Mr. Grabel's original selections and arrangements will be sprinkled through the new program he will present. He has made symphonic arrangements of some of the popular songs of the hour, building these melodies up in the vernacular of the arranger until they are veritable symphonic poems—a little "jazzy" some may say but they are not the jazz of Tin Pan Alley, but the jazz glorified, idealized.

An instrumental blending, different from anything that has ever been heard in the realm of band music, will be discovered. Grabel has spared no pains or expense to secure men who are masters of their instruments in order to get the desired effect in blending.

VROOMAN WILL SPEAK AT FARM DINNER HERE

Carl Vrooman, Bloomington, Ill. former assistant secretary of agriculture under the Wilson administration will be the principal speaker at the annual farm dinner here next month, it was announced Saturday at the chamber of commerce offices. The dinner this year will be held Thursday evening, Nov. 18.

Word that he would be able to come here on that date was received from Mr. Vrooman Friday. He is to speak in Washington, D. C., Nov. 12, and in St. Louis Nov. 16.

Mr. Vrooman is exceedingly popular with farmers who, it is said, will hear a message of great interest and importance.

Further details of the dinner will be completed Wednesday evening by the directors at their regular meeting.

FIREMEN CALLED TO BURNING AUTOMOBILE

A chimney fire at the home of Arthur Kobb, 1626 N. Appleton-st. and a burning automobile at N. Appleton-st. and N. Franklin took the fire department out for two runs Saturday evening. Damage was minimal to the car and the burning chimney was held under control, it was reported. The machine was owned by Evelyn Eiler.

EQUALIZATION BOARD MEETS ON WEDNESDAY

The Outagamie county committee on equalization will meet Wednesday of this week instead of on Wednesday, Nov. 10, as originally reported. The committee will review the report of Income Assessor Leo J. Toonen. At present indications are that Mr. Toonen's report will be accepted for submission to the county board without changes.

20,000 WAR VETERANS DIE YEARLY SAYS REPORT

Washington—(AP)—The ranks of America's veterans who fought in common union with the allies in the world war, are thinning out.

Twenty thousand of these former service men are dying every year and a considerable percentage from service disabilities, the American Red Cross declared in a report Saturday.

Despite the increase in deaths, it was pointed out that relief for the living veterans continues in heavy volume.

Home Service, an adjunct of the Red Cross dealing with veterans problems, was maintained during the year by 2,836 Red Cross chapters, while an average of 39,720 service men, former service men, or their families were assisted every month.

To help disabled veterans, the organization spent $3,628,178 during the year, while four men of the regular Army and Navy $509,451 was expended.

COPS HAVE NIGHT OF REST AS KIDS REMAIN INDOORS

Halloween Passes With Very Little Disturbance, Police Say

"The youth of Appleton is to be complimented on its good taste in the way in which Halloween was celebrated," Police Chief George T. Frits declared Monday morning.

Saturday night the department received several calls and Sunday night two runs were made by the police car but in no instance was serious property damage reported and the calls were mostly instigated by persons acting on "information and belief" that things might get out of control in certain neighborhoods rather than that any actual depredations had been committed, the chief said.

Ringling of doorbells, parades of "ghosts and goblins" and private parties apparently absorbed the youth of the city who even a few years ago would probably have made the night an interesting one in police circles, it was stated.

Naturally, it was pointed out, a considerable amount of unguarded porch furniture came to ultimate rest in unlikely places and several grocers were searching diligently for portable advertising signs but property damage as far as reported indicates, a clean slate, according to police records.

One American boy in every ten between the ages of 12 and 18 is listed as a Boy Scout.

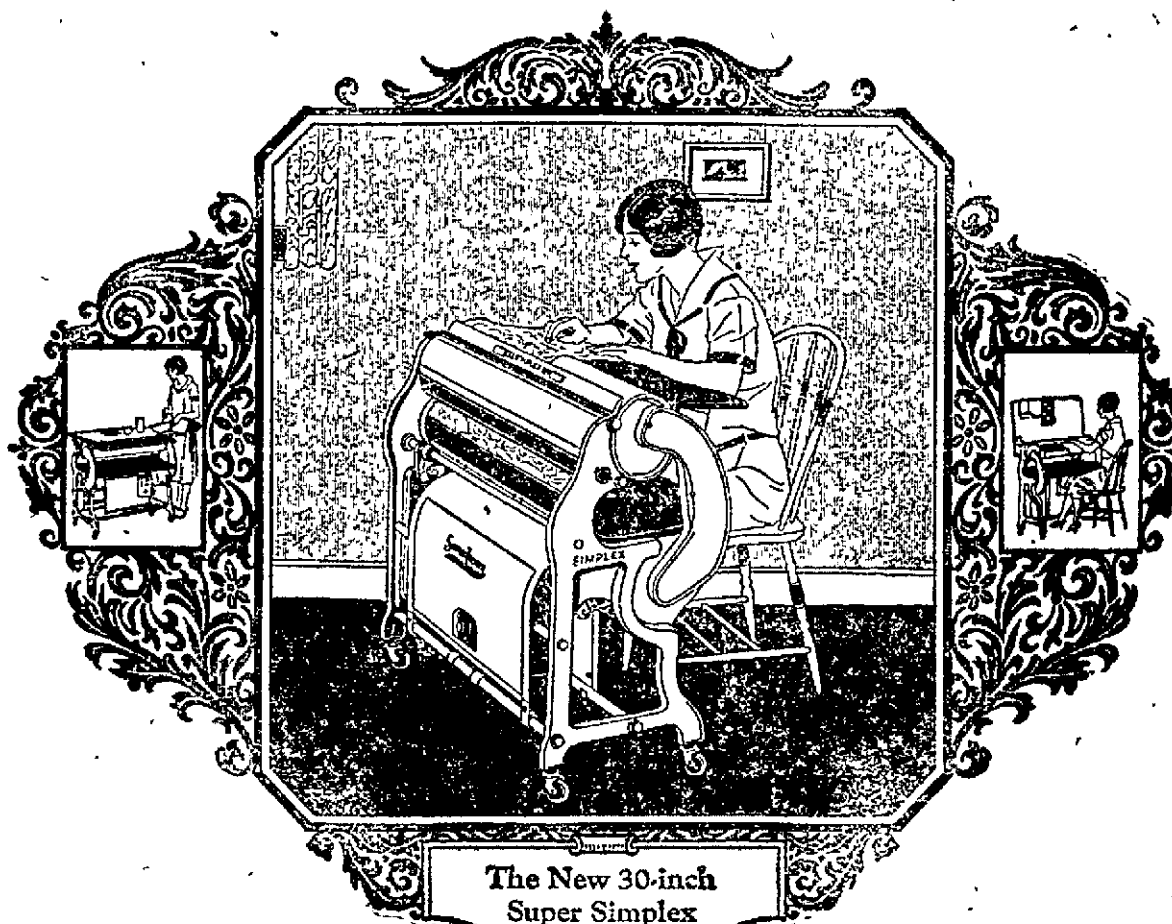

Now Phyllis Has Rosy Cheeks

I always liked Phyllis and I felt sorry for her. She never had many good times. Just pale and "washed out looking." Tired easily. Never went in for sports like the rest of us. But now, why I never saw such a change! I hardly knew her. She had gained five pounds. She'd been playing tennis and, honestly, she looked glad to be alive!

"What have you done to yourself?" I demanded. "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," she laughed. "I'm also taking the Pills for Constipation. Better try them yourself."
